LONDON, Sept. 1—New German aerial raids, in which gas and incendiary bombs were allegedly used, were reported on Gdynia, Vilna, and the Silesian mining districts in an Exchange Telegraph dispatch from Zurich today.

PARIS—Unofficial reports were heard in the Chamber of Deputies corridors tonight that Polish war planes have bombed Berlin.

BERLIN, Sept. 1—In a fateful message to the people of Germany and the world, Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler informed the Reichstag today that war had broken out between Germany and Poland.

"It will continue," he said, "until Germany emerges victorious."

"Polish troops opened fire on our soldiers last night," he said. "Since 5:45 A. M. (11:45 P. M. Circleville time), we have been replying with fire.

"I have ordered the air force to attack military centers.

"From now on bomb will be answered with bomb."

"I will not fight women and children," he told the Reichstag as authentic military circles in Berlin stated that Warsaw and Crakow were primarily fortified points and therefore immediate objects of attack.

"I ordered the air force to attack military objectives," the Fuehrer continued.

"Should the enemy, however, interpret this as carte blanche to fight with other weapons, he will receive the proper answer until such a time as his senses leave him."

Unanimous approval was voted to annexation of Danzig as proclaimed by Albert Foerster, Danzig chief of state.

"I am determined first to solve the Danzig problem, second that of the Polish Corridor and third to ensure that the conditions be established for peaceful living.

HOW the war move is affecting the British populace is seen in advertisements run in London newspapers and magazines.

Question of Aggressor Clear; Frenchmen Calm

By H. R. Knickerbocker

PARIS, Sept. 1—As war began today, the French, British and Poles checked as their greatest asset the fact that Adolf Hitler made himself so indisputably the aggressor that the question of war guilt this time is not expected ever to arise.

Whether justified or not, the allies now confidently expect that neutral nations, headed by America, will share this judgment wherein Der Fuehrer appears accused of deliberately passing sentence of death on millions.

This feeling by the allies that right is on their side, plus the particular feeling in France that she is ready and able and resolved to repel whatever violence Hitler may choose to use, without a doubt heartened the French to accept dread news with a calm which seems almost abnormal.

A stranger dropping into the French capital today would never know that war began this morning unless he read the newspapers or asked: "How's the crisis going?"

French Indifferent

On the surface, Frenchmen appear positively indifferent.

This is the only reaction of a brave people to an event too monstrous for emotions, too deep for public expression.

Hence a stranger would believe that the French don't care, that they are simply bored by war.

Hours after learning that Hitler had launched the catastrophe that the whole world had dreaded since he came to power, citizens of Paris went about their business with even less than their ordinary latin excitement and the city looked like Paris on a holiday.

The streets were half empty and shops, except for grocery stores, were quite empty.

MARSHAL GOERING, THEN HESS WOULD TAKE NAZI FUEHRER'S POSITION

BERLIN, Sept. 1—Believing he may not live to see the end of his struggle with Poland, Chancellor Hitler today arranged for succession to the dictatorship.

His immediate successor is to be Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering. And, after Goering, Rudolf Hess, deputy leader.

"The nation," the Fuehrer told the Reichstag, "would be obligated to give them the same loyal obedience as myself.

"Should anything happen to both Goering and Hess, I shall appoint a by-law senate to select the most worthy and bravest man out of its midst.

"With a strong heart, I am going into the fight of my life."

HUGH R. WILSON QUITS POST AS ENVOY TO BERLIN

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—Hugh R. Wilson resigned today as U. S. Ambassador to Germany.

The resignation was announced by President Roosevelt.

Wilson will be assigned to duties in the state department.

The diplomat was recalled from Germany for "report and consultation" during the campaign against Jews. He has remained in this country since.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—President Roosevelt today summoned Secretary of War Woodring, Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson and Army Chief of Staff Gen. George C. Marshall to a White House conference.

Also attending the conference were Acting Secretary of Navy Charles Edison and Admiral Harold Stark, chief of naval operations.

88,478 IN GRANGES

COLUMBUS, Sept. 1—Ohio grangers now number 88,478, a membership gain of more than 2,000 over last year, Walter F. Kirk, state grange master, announced today. The 90,000 mark will be reached within the next few months, Kirk predicted. The 67th annual convention of the Ohio organization will be held in Columbus, Dec. 12-14.

WAR IN EUROPE BOOSTS WHEAT, LOWERS STOCKS

Chicago Market Limit Hit As September Grain Goes Up Over Seven Cents

CORN FUTURES STRONG

Hostilities Force Drop Of More Than $5 A Share In Some Issues

Circleville's grain market soared to new highs for the season Friday in the wake of war news. Wheat, 65 at the close of business Thursday, went to 71 cents. Yellow corn gained four cents to 47, white corn went from 52 to 56, and soybeans followed the trend by advancing three cents to 66 cents a bushel.

CHICAGO, Sept. 1—Germany's invasion of Poland sent wheat prices soaring today in wild trading on the Board of Trade. September wheat rose as much as 7¼ cents a bushel in the opening few minutes of trading. Other wheat futures rose 5 cents, the limit for a single day. Corn futures rose 4 cents.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—The stock market turned very weak today on the German-Polish hostilities after opening sharply lower. Losses ran to more than $5 a share in American Telephone, which sold down to $155.50.

Other big losses were $4 in Du Pont, Johns Manville and Union Carbide, $4.37½ in Chrysler, $3.12½ in Bethlehem Steel and $2.62½ in U. S. Steel. Selling was moderately heavy but the decline was orderly.

BOY, 17, ADMITS DRIVING STOLEN CAR IN TRAGEDY

Edward Writesel, 17, of Columbus, an inmate of the Lancaster Industrial School, admitted to George E. Gerhardt, county prosecutor, and Earl Weaver, deputy sheriff, Thursday afternoon that a stolen car he was driving last December 3 was involved in an accident on Route 23, the prosecutor announced Friday.

The county officials made the trip to Lancaster as a result of statements of two youths under arrest in Columbus that Writesel was driver of the car involved in the hit-skip death of Stanford Burris, 33, of Harrison Township, found dying in a ditch after the accident.

Mr. Gerhardt said Writesel is in the Industrial School under a sentence imposed in Columbus for auto theft. Writesel told the officers he abandoned the stolen car after the accident. Information obtained about the accident will be submitted to the grand jury when it meets next Tuesday.

Two stolen cars were abandoned at the scene of the accident. The youths in Columbus admitted stealing a car in Columbus, driving it to Circleville and turning it over to Writesel after they stole another car in Circleville.

The two youths in Columbus, Ralph Wycuff, 18, and William Carles, 18, have admitted stealing 16 automobiles between November 11 and August 2.

NO TRADE RESTRICTIONS

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—The Stock Exchange opened today without any new restrictions on trading and Wall Street went about its business as usual despite the shock of the German-Polish war.

TWO BRUISED AS CAR TURNS OVER ON SCIOTO TRAIL

Two Circleville youths escaped serious injury about 9 P. M. Thursday when the car in which they were riding left Route 23 near the Pickaway-Ross County line and overturned in a field.

Millard Good, 21, of East Franklin Street, driver of the car, has a laceration over the left eye, a broken nose, cut on the nose and severe bruises. John Griffith, 21, West Corwin Street, suffered a severely bruised right elbow, chest bruises and minor cuts and bruises.

The men were going southward. Good said he was blinded by lights of another car and lost control of his car. The auto owned by Marion Good, a brother of Millard, overturned in a field.

HITLER'S ATTACK ON POLES KEEPS CITY IN DITHER

Circleville folk couldn't keep their minds on their work Friday. There was too much excitement in Europe.

In downtown stores, offices and in practically every home radios were kept tuned for last minute bulletins of the war situation. Newspapers were closely followed for every bit of information on a situation that involves the world. War was discussed over back fences, in business places and on streets, whenever two persons met.

The city was awakened early Friday by the shouts of Daily Herald newsboys selling extras announcing the opening of hostilities between Germany and Poland. Some residents had remained up a large part of the night to hear news bulletins on the situation.

A group of representative citizens, discussing the situation Friday, believed Great Britain and France would not back down on their promise to aid Poland. They concluded Mussolini would have a lot to lose and little to gain if he aided Hitler. All had the firm desire that United States "stay clear out" of the affair.

Discussions of the situation in downtown offices indicated Hitler would be a very foolish man if he ever visited Circleville or Pickaway County.

EVACUATION OF AMERICANS IN EUROPE MAPPED

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1 — The U. S. Maritime Commission today will press into service a fleet of additional vessels to speed evacuation of Americans in Europe.

Details of the emergency evacuation program are to be announced later in the morning.

It is estimated that a large number of American nationals are still in various British and continental areas without means of transportation back home. A large number of Americans, however, already are enroute back to the United States as a result of additional ships put into the trans-Atlantic run during the last week.

At the state department officials reiterated this government's willingness to lend passage money to any individual abroad who is in need of it.

The Maritime Commission intends to use American ships entirely in the evacuation although three naval vessels stationed in European waters are expected to assist in the work.

FOUR LEAVE TO RETURN YOUTH FROM BROOKLYN

The charge involves the Crosley car of Councilman Ben Gordon, alleged to have been taken by Groom for a trial run that resulted in he and three companions making a trip to the New York World's Fair.

Those making the trip are W. F. McCrady, police chief; Earl Weaver, deputy sheriff; Karl Herrmann, safety director, and William Strawser, employe of Mr. Gordon. Mr. Strawser expects to return in about a week in the Crosley. He expects to visit the World's Fair while in New York. The others plan to return home Monday.

BERLIN, Sept. 1—Anti-aircraft guns were unlimbered throughout Berlin today. Mobilization of civil air defense was expected for tonight.

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

War in all its horror broke on the world today as Germany and Poland came to grips in undeclared hostilities on the frontier and Nazi bombing planes swept across the border on missions of destruction.

The imposition of a drastic censorship in all European capitals left largely to the imagination the loss of life and inevitable suffering.

Soon after Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler told the Reichstag that Polish provocation had forced him to take "retaliatory" measures, the German high command announced that German troops had crossed the Polish frontier on a general scale and that bombing planes had gone into action against "fortified areas" such as Cracow and Kattowitz. A check this afternoon showed 11 towns and cities raided.

Polish sources in Paris insisted that Warsaw had been bombed, stating that four aerial attacks had been made by the Germans, three of which were repulsed.

While the Polish formally invoked France and British aid against Nazi Germany under the terms of the mutual assistance pact, the United States was compelled by disordered communications to speculate on the actual extent of hostilities.

Many Reported Killed

Brief, censored dispatches told of "fierce fighting" and apparent determined resistance by the Poles but the only clue as to the toll of the German air raids was afforded by the official Polish radio, which insisted that "many persons, including women and children" had been killed and wounded.

In Berlin, however, the high command retorted that the attacks on Cracow and Kattowitz, for example, were confined to "military areas" in conformity with Hitler's announcement to the Reichstag that "I shall not fight women and children."

German planes concentrated their attack on the industrial regions of Silesia, Polish sources in Paris said. Westerplatte and Puch were bombed, it was asserted.

Rumors from Warsaw and Paris listed Tczew, Vilna, Brzec, Grodno, Lodz and Gdynia as other major centers attacked.

LONDON, Sept. 1—Great Britain and France will stand by their pledge to Poland and fight for her independence, the British government announced this afternoon as the PARIS, Sept. 1—Italy today again proposed a five-power mediation of the German-Polish conflict.

LONDON, Sept. 1—King George today signed an order in council providing for complete mobilization of the British army and air force. The navy was mobilized completely yesterday.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—Count Jerzy Potocki, Polish ambassador to the United States, today declared that damage from German planes bombing Warsaw, capital of Poland, "has not been very extensive as yet."

LONDON, Sept. 1—The German fleet is bombarding Gdynia, Reuter reported without confirmation from Helsinki today.

BERLIN, Sept. 1—Anti-aircraft guns were unlimbered throughout Berlin today. Mobilization of civil air defense was expected for tonight.

BY INTERNATIONAL NEWS SERVICE

War in all its horror broke on the world today as Germany and Poland came to grips in undeclared hostilities on the frontier and Nazi bombing planes swept across the border on missions of destruction.

The imposition of a drastic censorship in all European capitals left largely to the imagination the loss of life and inevitable suffering.

Soon after Reichsfuehrer Adolf Hitler told the Reichstag that Polish provocation had forced him to take "retaliatory" measures, the German high command announced that German troops had crossed the Polish frontier on a general scale and that bombing planes had gone into action against "fortified areas" such as Cracow and Kattowitz. A check this afternoon showed 11 towns and cities raided.

Polish sources in Paris insisted that Warsaw had been bombed, stating that four aerial attacks had been made by the Germans, three of which were repulsed.

While the Polish formally invoked France and British aid against Nazi Germany under the terms of the mutual assistance pact, the United States was compelled by disordered communications to speculate on the actual extent of hostilities.

Many Reported Killed

Brief, censored dispatches told of "fierce fighting" and apparent determined resistance by the Poles but the only clue as to the toll of the German air raids was afforded by the official Polish radio, which insisted that "many persons, including women and children" had been killed and wounded.

In Berlin, however, the high command retorted that the attacks on Cracow and Kattowitz, for example, were confined to "military areas" in conformity with Hitler's announcement to the Reichstag that "I shall not fight women and children."

German planes concentrated their attack on the industrial regions of Silesia, Polish sources in Paris said. Westerplatte and Puch were bombed, it was asserted.

Rumors from Warsaw and Paris listed Tczew, Vilna, Brzec, Grodno, Lodz and Gdynia as other major centers attacked.

LONDON, Sept. 1—Great Britain and France will stand by their pledge to Poland and fight for her independence, the British government announced this afternoon as the COLUMBUS, Sept. 1 — Careful, Mr. Farmer. Don't throw away that skim milk. It may be a woman's dress some day. Take good care of that soybean crop. It may become part of an automobile body, or paint, spray, oil and numerous other marketable products.

That was the warning today of the National Farm Chemurgic Council, which is exhibiting the wonders of chemurgy at the 89th annual Ohio State Fair.

Chemurgy is a word for chemistry and allied sciences and its purpose is to advance the industrial use of American farm products through applied science.

New methods are being found to convert corn, wheat, cotton, soybeans and potatoes, timber and nearly all products of the soil into non-food uses.

Skim Milk Worn

A young woman is stationed at the chemurgic exhibit wearing a dress made of skim milk. It looks just like an ordinary dress, but somewhat harder in texture.

Some little known facts may be gleaned at the exhibit. For instance, there are 600,000 acres of soybeans in Ohio and the crop production in 1938 in the United States was 58,000,000 bushels.

Robert D. McMillen, secretary of the chemurgic council and director of information, tells of the wonders of chemurgy in plain language, although there is an expert who will give technical details for the asking.

One of the interesting displays is an automobile from soybean plastic. This may be the forerunner of the plastic automobile body, one-third the weight of steel.

Upholstery is made from soybean fibre. Meat, coffee, candy and cocoa substitutes, soap, glue and sizing material also are soybean by-products.

From corn husks and hemp fibre come tractor seats, from cotton comes a base for concrete and macadam roads. Coal, air and water are combined to make women's hosiery.

To prove soybean plastic is as sturdy as steel, McMillen took a sledge hammer and pounded on the automobile trunk top. Not a mark showed on the surface after several blows.

Laboratories Busy

Regional laboratories are continually experimenting with products of the soil in an attempt to create a new manufacturing era. This first chemurgic exhibit on a large scale graphically portrays the progress that is being made.

Governor Bricker recently appointed an Ohio Chemurgic Commission to study the chemical potentialities of the state. Other states have similar commissions.

At the fair yesterday, Arden F. King, of Payne, Harding County, and Geneva Maye Butler, of Homer, Licking County, were chosen Ohio's healthiest boy and girl in the annual 4-H Club state health contest. Both are 16 years old.

King scored 990 points out of a possible 1,000 and Miss Butler, 987. They will represent the Buckeye state in the annual Boys and Girls Club Congress health competition in Chicago December 3 to 7.

Other winners in the contest were:

Boys—Second, Bob Webb, Seven Mile, Butler County, 971 points; third, Paul Schubert, Trent, Preble County, and William James Ada, Hardin County, with 962 points.

Girls — Second, Mary Jane Williams, Mt. Gilead, Morrow County, 971; third, Wanda Heisel, Groveport, Franklin County, 969; Fourth, Lucille Logan, Kinsman, Trumbull County, 950.

Translation of Hitler's Address

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—English excerpts from a translation of Chancellor Adolf Hitler's address to the Reichstag follow:

"Since the war, we have been suffering with a problem which now has become unbearable to us. Danzig was a German city, the Corridor was and is a German territory.

"The Corridor was annexed by Poland and the minorities were very badly treated. I have always tried by reasonable suggestions to bring about a solution of this problem. Since fifteen years, there have been opportunities to bring about these revisions, but nothing has been done. All the proposals to remedy these unbearable conditions did not receive any consideration.

"You know the proposals that I have made to reestablish the sovereignty over former German territories.

"Therefore, it is understandable that action must be taken by us as the dictates of the Versailles peace are unbearable. I have tried by peaceful means to bring about a solution of the Danzig and the Corridor problems. This problem would evtntually be solved, but the time it would take is not satisfactory. It has not been satisfactory to us. At least I have formulated the German proposals and I must say that they are very modest.

Pressure Used

These proposals that I have made were declined and instead they were answered by mobilizations and a heavier pressure against the German population in those territories.

"We have kept our pledge to the minorities and no Frenchman can say that the minorities in the Saar district were ever oppressed. I have warned, time and time again, and over three weeks ago notified England that the existing conditions and the attitude of Poland towards Danzig could not continue. One must be careful not to mistake the present-day Germany with the former Germany.

"Provocations have occured, and no great power can stand by and see these provocations continue.

"I have tried to accept the British proposal, but Great Britain wanted us to take up this question directly with Poland. I carefully worked out these proposals and have been sitting here for two days waiting to hear from Poland.

"If one expects the German Reich and the German head of the state to accept these conditions, then there is nothing else for them to do but to retire.

Mobilization Ordered

"In answer to my last proposal, a general mobilization was ordered in Poland. I have, therefore, decided to speak to Poland in the same language as they are speaking to us.

"Nothing can stop me for one second to fulfill my duty.

"I have always offered to England friendship and close cooperation. I can guarantee that we are demanding nothing from the Western powers.

"We shall solve this problem ourselves and the neutral states have guaranteed their neutrality. If anyone should break their neutrality, we shall treat it accordingly, but we expect them to observe their neutrality.

"Germany has no intentions to export its doctrines as well as the Soviet Republic has no intentions to export its doctrines, and there is no reason why we should stand over against each other. We have decided to close a pact which will prevent any use of force against us.

"I wish to state here that this decision fought together in the World War and both suffered, but this will not happen for the second time.

"This agreement has been ratified in Moscow as well as in Berlin. The speech of the Foreign Minister Molotov I can only endorse word by word.

Danzig Problem Goal

"Our goal is to solve the Danzig question and to live amicably together and this must be done with this government or some other government will have to do it.

"I want to remove from the German borders the danger and the uncertainty of these conditions. I will take the necessary actions, but I do not want to fight against women and children. I have notified my air force to restrict its activities but if our opponent takes advantage of this he will receive unmericful treatment at our hands. Our soldiers have beetn shot at and since 5:45 we have been shooting back. I will carry on this fight until the rights of the Reich have been received.

"Since six years I have built up the German forces and ninety billions of marks have been spent. My confidence in victory is invincible and I am ready to make every sacrifice. I asked from no German citizen anything else but what I have offered voluntarily myself. I would ask nothing of anyone I would not do myself.

"If anything should happen to me in this war, then my successor will be Field Marshal Goering. And if anything should happen to him, the next successor will be the party leader, Hess. And I expect that you will give him the same confidence that you have given me. If anything should happen to them, then by means of the law I will have someone selected who is worthy, and that means the bravest.

"My only object is to fight for my people and the restoration of Germany.

"My only object is to fight for my people and the restoration of Germany. One word I have never learned, and that is the word — 'capitulation.'

"I wish to assure that November 18, 1918, will never repeat itself in German history. I am ready to give my life for my country. I expect everyone to do the same.

"I expect everyone to do his duty in those places in which he has or they have been placed, and as I am responsible for the good of the government, you are responsible for the good of your different districts.

"I also expect the German woman to submit herself to an iron discipline. If our will is so strong that nobody can dominate it, then our will will carry through."

Conscience Shocked By Barbarism Of Last Few Struggles

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—President Roosevelt today issued an appeal for peace after he himself had anounced that "hostilities had actually begun" between Germany and Poland, and pleaded against the bombing of civilian populations.

The President's appeal dispatched at 4:30 A. M., was addressed to Germany, Poland, Great Britain, France, Italy.

Mr. Roosevelt requested an immediate reply from the five governments.

"The ruthless bombing from the air of civilians in unfortified centers of population during the course of hostilities which have raged in various quarters of the earth during the last few years, which has resulted in the maiming and the death of thousands of defenseless men, women and children has sickened the hearts of every civilized man and woman and has profoundly shocked the conscience of humanity," the President said.

"If resort is had to this form of inhuman barbarism during the period of the tragic conflagration with which the world is now confronted, hundreds of thousands of innocent human beings who have no responsibility for, and who are not even remotely participating in, the hostilities which have now broken out, will lose their lives.

"I am therefore addressing this urgent appeal to every government which may be engaged in hostilities publicly to affirm its determination that its armed forces shall in no event, and under no circumstances, undertake the bombardment from the air of civilian populations or of unfortified cities, on the understading that these same rules of warfare will be scrupulously observed by all of their opponents. I request an immediate reply."

The body of M. D. Shoemaker, 65, a former attendant at the Orient institution, was found Thursday in the kitchen of the home of his brother, O. L. Shoemaker, Fayette County.

Mr. Shoemaker worked at the Orient institution for eight years, retiring after the auto accident. He was born near London and spent the greater part of his life in the Sedalia community,

TO FAIR EXHIBITORS

FRIENDS: Congratulations are due to all of you from your friends in Circleville and Pickaway County. It was a pleasure this week to read that many entries from our county won major awards at the Ohio State Fair. This exposition is a big one; the entries listed in it are the best that the great state of Ohio is able to afford. You should feel proud that your entries were selected as good enough to rate prizes. Orchids go to the Teegardin family at Duvall for the numerous awards its splendid herd of Polled Shorthorn cattle received during the competition, to the Mace and Vincent families in the New Holland community for doing so well in the horse pulling events, to the many boys and girls whose 4-H Club entries rated honors, to the 4-H Club Band for being selected to play at Governor's Day, and to the many who entered exhibits but were not quite able to win ribbons. This fair, like the Pumpkin Show, belongs to all of us and we should all participate in it by entering any exhibits that we may have in our possession. The State Fair has been outstanding this year and its success should stimulate directors of our Agricultural Society to put on a bigger and better Pumpkin Show, one that should be remembered for many years to come. It is time for organizations to start making plans for participation; floats should be arranged, lunch stands should be planned, farmers who have outstanding produce should put it aside to await the Pumpkin Show.

TO COUNCIL

MEMBERS: Approval of a budget that means restoration of depression pay cuts to employees of Berger Hospital is certainly justified. The hospital has had the greatest year in its history. At times it has been difficult to find sufficient room for patients. Collections have established new records. The efficient staff of employees of the hospital is largely responsible for its success. Pay cuts taken by other city employees during the depression have been restored. It is only fair to restore them to hospital workers.

CIRCUITEER.

TO RURAL FOLK

FRIENDS: Three automobile loads of gypsies visited Pickaway County this week, and it is interesting to know that cooperation given the sheriff's department resulted in no difficulties with the roamers. A motorist notified the department of the gypsies' arrival in the western district of the county. They were immediately located by the sheriff's department, their licenses checked, and then they were escorted to Lancaster where they were met by Fairfield county authorities. Pickaway countians have had some costly experiences with gypsies. A number of aged persons have been victims of robberies. County folk should notify the sheriff's department at once of any gypsies in their community. With proper cooperation from rural folk the department will see that the gypsies have the proper escorts out of this district.

CIRCUITEER.

TO BAND MEMBERS

YOUNGSTERS: School will be opening Sept. 11, the first football game will be played Sept. 15, and from that time on something will be doing during the remainder of the fall season. Why do you not get together and figure out some intricate drills that will help occupy the time between halves of the grid games? Circleville has joined an excellent athletic league and its schools will be sending outstanding bands to Circleville. I, for one, do not want to sit in the stands and watch a visiting organization outdo our own. Circleville has a fine musical organization. How about planning some drills that will add to this reputation?

CIRCUITEER.

TO DRIVERS

MOTORISTS: Since next Monday is a holiday many families will be planning trips during the week end. The highways will be crowded with traffic. Have you had your car checked recently to see if the brakes are in good condition, the lights working properly and the tires satisfactory. Last week end one person was killed and twelve injured in auto accidents in Pickaway County, the worst record of the summer. Drive carefully on your trip for the safety of your family and others on the highway. It's foolish to take chances. Remember the county schools open next week. Be on the lookout for school buses. Do not pass a stopped bus.

CIRCUITEER.

TO SCHOOL BOARDS

EDUCATORS: Controversies that surround the Muhlenberg and Scioto Township Boards of Education appear as though they may go on and on with solutions far in the future. Both sides in each dispute believe they are in the right, so, naturally, the argument continues. I am certainly not interested in who is right and who is wrong, but I do hope that something is done to provide pupils of the Muhlenberg district and of the Orient area a proper opportunity for education of the first class. Boards of education, whether local or county or state, should have the welfare of the children in mind at all times. The former argument, to determine whether Muhlenberg High School pupils should go to Monroe or Jackson Schools, has entered court. The other concerning operation of a one-room school in Orient may get to court since the Scioto Board has declared that it will open the Orient School despite a state ruling to the contrary.

World At A Glance — - - — - - —By— Charles P. Stewart

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—That President Roosevelt ever will get the kind of neutrality legislation he wants is no foregone conclusion.

When congress adjourned, it appeared to be taken for granted by the administration that as soon as the lawmakers reconvened they'd vote the White House the discretion desired by its tenant. Especially was it predicted that Capitol Hill would recognize the desirability of complying with the presidential wish in the event that the European situation developed the tensity it did develop immediately following the conclusion of the Russo-German pact.

However, the senators and representatives who have been heard from thus far in Washington don't predominantly express themselves as having been converted. If anything, they seem more than even set upon a policy of unqualified American aloofness from overseas trouble.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, the author of the present neutrality rule which allows the White House no option whatever, was the first to authorize an interview, standing absolutely pat in favor of 100 percent isolation on Uncle Sam's part. In fact, he asserts that the recent trend of events across the ocean proves conclusively how imperatively the kind of law he fathered was needed.

Other isolationists apparently are in agreement with him, to judge from dispatches quoting them, in their various home towns throughout the country.

Dependable pro-administrationists, of course, will support the president, but the last session of congress revealed the unreliability of the majority party as backers of the executive mansion's recommendations.

It will be a tight squeak anyway.

WHAT ABOUT JAPAN?

While government spokesmen emphatically don't like the Hitler-Stalin dicker on general principles, a few of them very confidentially do voice a modicum of satisfaction at the fix it has left Japan in. There's been no doubt in Washington at any time that the Japs have intended to make China as disagreeable a place for Americans as for the English as soon as they considered the occasion ripe for it. Now, with Russia free to deal with them, it's foreseen that the islanders will be lucky to maintain any foothold at all in continental Asia.

That Stalin will lend all the aid possible to the Chinese is considered a certainty. In short, military men are mostly of the opinion that the Jap cause on the mainland is as good as lost already. If the Mikado couldn't lick Chiang Kai-Shek without the Soviets helping him, what chance will he have, critics ask skeptically, to handle a Russo-Chinese combination?

Indeed there are observers who suggest that the Tokio government may not last much longer.

That is to say if it becomes apparent to everybody in Japan that their mainland forces are definitely beaten, that all their fighting and sacrifices have gone for nothing, won't there be a terrific popular reaction? Inside informations is to the effect that there's considerable undercover dissatisfaction among the Japs now.

WHAT NEXT IN CHINA?

Some far-seeing commentators are a bit uneasy at the prospect of a formidable Russian intrenchment in China. Having disposed of Japan, if they succeed in doing it, the surmise is that the Soviets immediately will set about communizing all the Chinese. There's a good bit of Communistic sentiment among them already.

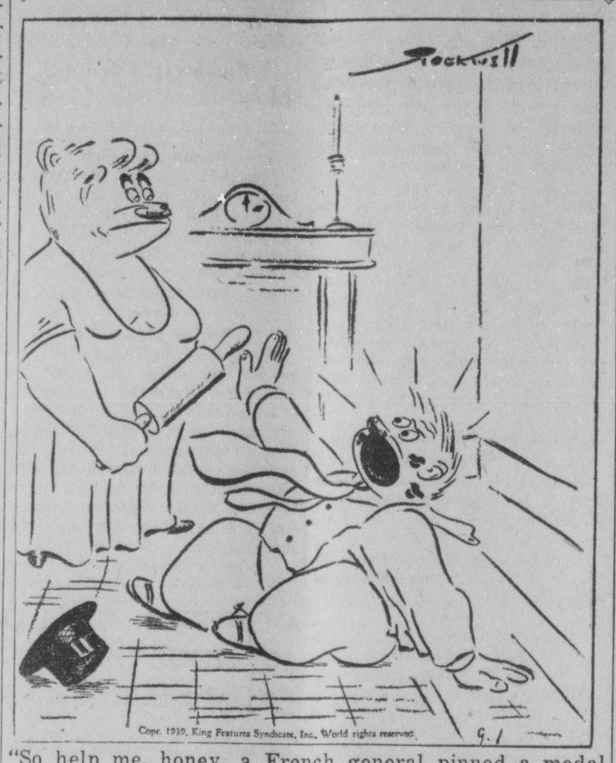

Pessismists venture the opinion that a Sovietized China might be as bad as having it run by the Japs.

It would be a matter of considerable concern to the United States, too. Most of Russia is rather remote from this country now. A Communistic nation right down to the edge of the Pacific, directly opposite our own west coast, would be different.

Perhaps the reason some of the statements being made by one or two of those European statesmen sound so incoherent is that they're being made from bomb-proof shelters.

Somebody ought to tell Hitler and those other chaps that the only man in the world to make real money out of fighting these last few years is a Detroit boy named Joe Louis.

DIET AND HEALTH

Tracing School Failures To Defective Eyesight

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

DESPITE the efforts made by public health agencies and other organizations, parents are not yet aware of the need of periodic examination of children's eyes.

Children of school age are constantly found to have visual defects, gross enough to render them incapable of succeeding in their courses. The children do not complain. When they enter school, they are for the first time made to do close visual work. In their innocence they assume that if the letters in the book are blurred, that is the way they should be and that every other pupil's book has blurred letters also.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It is therefore not unnatural that the best meaning parents should be bewildered when their children are reported as failing in their studies and that they should resent the suggestion that the children are lacking in intelligence. They think, and properly, that the child at home is intelligent, and blame the school authorities for the failure of the child to advance.

Another Difficulty

Another difficulty familiar to school authorities is that when the suggestion is made that a child needs glasses, the parents say, "He got glasses a few years ago." As the child develops the eyes develop also, and the glasses that might have been proper "a few years ago" are not necessarily adequate now. Then it depends on who fitted the glasses "a few years ago." I feel that for a child's eyes the best oculist is none too good.

Oculists agree that the small errors are the most important to correct because a child's eyes are always attempting to over-correct these small errors. They succeed in doing so but only at the expense of strain, which means headache and general discomfort. Good vision is one thing, sustained good vision with comfort is quite another.

The two common abnormalities of the eyes in children are astigmatism and muscle imbalance. Both can be compensated, but at a cost of discomfort.

The short-sighted child presents no mystery. Anybody can be convinced that he needs glasses; so with the child with a plain squint. But the child with a small amount of astigmatism or slight muscle imbalance can correct, and does involuntarily correct these defects, and the condition passes unrecognized.

Astigmatism is a refractive error depending on the proper curve of the cornea. For perfect vision the cornea should be a perfect curve. Then all the rays of light would be refracted at the same focus. Such eyes are never found. We all have a certain amount of astigmatism. Just when it gets abnormal do we get symptoms. Whenever vision causes discomfort, it needs correction.

I think this point is not as trite as it sounds. Every astigmatism does not need correction. Our instruments for measuring visual defects are far more accurate than they need to be and many children are unnecessarily fitted with glasses.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

J. F.: "(1) Is short-wave diathermy recommended for arthritis? (2) What causes lumps under the skin in arthritis? (3) Are these lumps ever pre-cancerous? (4) Does bursitis of the shoulder belong to either atrophic or hypertrophic arthritis group?"

Answer—(1) Yes. (2) Calcareous and inflammatory deposits. (3) No. (4) No.

J. L. D.: "Is there a cure for sugar diabetes? Please explain symptoms of the disease. What is the diet?"

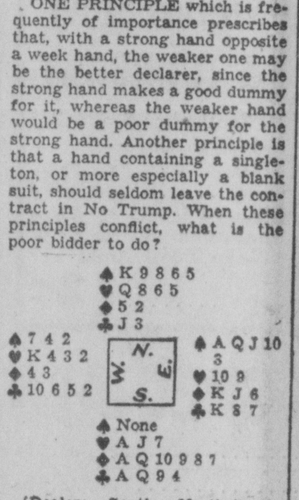

Answer—Diabetes can be controlled by diet and insulin. The symptoms are due to lack of utilization of sugar in the body. Treatment is to cut down the intake of sugar-producing foods—bread, sugar, fruits, desserts, milk.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clendening has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. For any one pamphlet desired, send 10 cents in coin, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Three Weeks' Reducing Diet", "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

CONTRACT BRIDGE

CONFLICTING FACTORS

ONE PRINCIPLE which is frequently of importance prescribes that, with a strong hand opposite a week hand, the weaker one may be the better declarer, since the strong hand makes a good dummy for it, whereas the weaker hand would be a poor dummy for the strong hand. Another principle is that a hand containing a singleton, or more especially a blank suit, should seldom leave the contract in No Trump. When these principles conflict, what is the poor bidder to do?

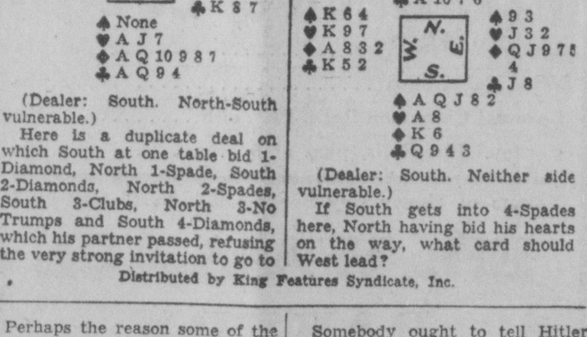

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

Here is a duplicate deal on which South at one table bid 1-Diamond, North 1-Spade, South 2-Diamonds, North 2-Spades, South 3-Clubs, North 3-No Trumps and South 4-Diamonds, which his partner passed, refusing the very strong invitation to go to 5-Clubs or diamonds. The contract was made right on the head.

At the other table the bidding was exactly the same up to the point of North's 3-No Trumps. South in this case decided to take a chance on his void suit and leave the contract at a No Trump game, which was made. East led the spade Q to the K. The diamond 10 was finessed, a heart led to the K and a spade returned for East to get three more tricks. When he then led his remaining heart, the Q won, then the diamond Q was finessed and the game made with five tricks in diamonds, two in hearts, and one each in the black suits.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

If South gets into 4-Spades here, North having bid his hearts on the way, what card should West lead?

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

"WELL, MEN, there's only one answer to that," George Brazee was saying. "I'm afraid you boys have been having your legs pulled by Mr. Escobar.

"How's that?" Shot Rogers demanded. He was a trifle belligerent.

"Well, Shot, what happened is plain. You boys all were so intent on following the cattle trail to the water and then going on upstream to see where they come out, that you overlooked the main detail. Why, son, of course them cows came out of the water right where they went in!"

"No, Mr. Brazee!"

"Why, shore they did. They'd have to. Escobar's gang just turned them around in mid-stream, and drove them out over their own tracks. Probably back trailed them a few hundred yards until they came to some rocky country, then cut suddenly off the trail you followed. You boys never noticed the back trailing. You just followed the steps to the river water because you saw them pointing that way clearly at first."

Shot held up a hand to halt him. "Mr. Brazee, sir, no! Now you are an older man than me—than I am. But some of the men you sent with me are older and more experienced than I am at trailing. And I am no fool myself. Why, what you say cain't be so! I'd stake my life on it. What about it, boys?"

The ten men who had accompanied Shot answered him almost as a chorus, backing him up. They carried enough weight, in reputation and in vehemence here, to convince George Brazee that perhaps he was wrong. But the matter was thereby left hanging again.

"Whyn't you ride over there yourself and see?" Shot challenged him. "I tell you, Mr. Brazee, it don't make sense. This is sure ghost country, and no foolin'! That's a ghost river if ever I saw one. And it's up to me to find the ghost somehow."

"I've got to go in to Blanco to meet some cattle buyers, or I'd ride over there," George Brazee said. "Maybe I can later. But no. No, you men are dependable. You work it out for me, gentlemen. I—well, I just don't know what to say. But it's midnight again, mighty near. Let's get to bed and sleep on it."

It was indeed late. Shot and his henchmen had circled about the river forks and argued for a long while, and finally come back home in sheer desperation. Some of them had become a bit ill tempered.

They had repeatedly sallied out with rifles and ammunition, expecting a show-down with Luis Escobar. And just as often had they been thwarted. Worst of all, they couldn't even understaand what had happened. Almost sullenly they trudged off to the bunk-house to go to bed.

Shot was last to leave the Brazee porch, and when he finally started, Lorena Hamilton called quietly to him.

"I didn't tag along after you this time, Shot," she said sweetly.

He stopped instantly, looking into the shadows beside the house.

"I didn't see you out here," he said. "How're you doin'?"

"I'm just fine, thank you. How are you?"

"I'm—uh, I'm all right. You—you feel like maybe walking a little?"

"I thought you were angry with me."

"No'm. No, I been pretty cut up with myself. I couldn't ever be mad at you. Never!"

"Why Shot! That was a pretty speech."

"Well—"

"Well, what? Come on, we can walk over and sit on the windmill trough and play in the water."

"I been playing in water all day. I'm still soggy."

"Tell me about it. I just heard a part of what you told Uncle George."

She linked her hand in his elbow and they walked toward the windmill, his spurs clink-clinking, his hat scraping against the rough corduroy pants he wore as he swung it idly in his right hand. He gestured with his hat as he described the events of the day. He found he could talk freely with her. In fact, he discovered almost at once that Lorena's presence was immensely soothing and comforting to his soul, for he had been more upset inwardly than he was tired of muscle and bone.

By the time they sat on the rocks near the windmill tower they were talking intimately and in full trust again. Lorena felt her heart singing. The day had been a miserable one for her. She had been imagining all sorts of fantastic, sad and tragic things; hadn't even been hungry, which was her worst sign. Just sitting here with Shot, though, brought new life and interest into her being, and his own spirits responded in kind.

"The truth is, Lorena," he was soon admitting, "I'm not getting no—not getting anywhere a-tall. With a bunch of armed men, I mean. We're plumb up a tree. I got to stop depending on rifles and set down and do some plain and fancy thinking. That's the way I see it now."

"Oh, Shot, I wish I could help! Honestly I do. I want to. Look—you let me discuss it with you once before. Our detective plan, I mean. Don't you think—do you imagine maybe we could still—"

He reached to pat her hand affectionately, gratefully.

"Lorena, you are a swell somebody!" he spoke with conviction. "I'll sure listen to you."

"You—you won't think I'm a—an old setting hen, butting in on men's affairs?"

"Lo-re-na!"

"I think you have too many armed men, Shot. Escobar has secret spies here on the ranch; somehow they are telling Escobar everything you try to do. I can't name anybody for sure, but—"

"How'll we combat spies, then?"

"By counter-spying. Spying on Escobar."

"All right. I'll do any way you say, Lorena. I feel licked tonight."

"Anything? Anything I suggest? Promise?"

"Yes, I promise. All right."

"Then go quietly and get some dry clothes, Shot, and let's slip off to see what we can learn!"

"What? How's that?" He sat up straight to look intently at her.

"You heard me!" she was whispering excitedly. "You pretend to go to bed. So will I. Then meet me at one o'clock on top of the big cliff, back of the house. There's an easy trail up this side, even though it's steep. And a long sloping one down the back side which leads off to the southward. I went up today and looked all around."

"But listen, Lorena—"

"No, you listen! You leave a note saying you have gone in to Blanco to get two or three more men, and that your scouts are to ride around on the east range again trying to pick up any clews to Escobar. That will mislead any spies here, won't it? I'll say I went to Blanco with you, to do some shopping and see a dentist for a toothache. But actually, you and I'll go to the upper reaches of the Ghost river forks—and see what we can learn!"

"That's a long ride, Lorena! And dangerous. And—"

"We won't ride, we'll walk. Get shoulder packs. Food and canteens. You promised! There'll be far less danger than if we go on horses, Shot. Don't you see? I'm used to hiking. I have strong shoes. It's only eight or ten miles, isn't it? I can walk much farther than that!"

"My lordy!" breathed Shot Rogers, astounded, but tempted to try her daring plan even so.

Hints on Etiquette

There is such a thing as etiquette of the telephone. Don't continue to carry on a long, intimate conversation with a friend, if you are on the party line and someone is trying to get the line. She MAY need a doctor or help of some other kind.

Today's Horoscope

If you are celebrating your birthday today, you may look forward to a moderately favorable year. You must, however, exercise care to avoid litigation, quarreling and extravagance. The child born on this date will be active, industrious, ambitious and fortunate. He or she should, however, be taught to control a somewhat quick, imperious temper.

TO FAIR EXHIBITORS

FRIENDS: Congratulations are due to all of you from your friends in Circleville and Pickaway County. It was a pleasure this week to read that many entries from our county won major awards at the Ohio State Fair. This exposition is a big one; the entries listed in it are the best that the great state of Ohio is able to afford. You should feel proud that your entries were selected as good enough to rate prizes. Orchids go to the Teegardin family at Duvall for the numerous awards its splendid herd of Polled Shorthorn cattle received during the competition, to the Mace and Vincent families in the New Holland community for doing so well in the horse pulling events, to the many boys and girls whose 4-H Club entries rated honors, to the 4-H Club Band for being selected to play at Governor's Day, and to the many who entered exhibits but were not quite able to win ribbons. This fair, like the Pumpkin Show, belongs to all of us and we should all participate in it by entering any exhibits that we may have in our possession. The State Fair has been outstanding this year and its success should stimulate directors of our Agricultural Society to put on a bigger and better Pumpkin Show, one that should be remembered for many years to come. It is time for organizations to start making plans for participation; floats should be arranged, lunch stands should be planned, farmers who have outstanding produce should put it aside to await the Pumpkin Show.

TO COUNCIL

MEMBERS: Approval of a budget that means restoration of depression pay cuts to employees of Berger Hospital is certainly justified. The hospital has had the greatest year in its history. At times it has been difficult to find sufficient room for patients. Collections have established new records. The efficient staff of employees of the hospital is largely responsible for its success. Pay cuts taken by other city employees during the depression have been restored. It is only fair to restore them to hospital workers.

CIRCUITEER.

TO RURAL FOLK

FRIENDS: Three automobile loads of gypsies visited Pickaway County this week, and it is interesting to know that cooperation given the sheriff's department resulted in no difficulties with the roamers. A motorist notified the department of the gypsies' arrival in the western district of the county. They were immediately located by the sheriff's department, their licenses checked, and then they were escorted to Lancaster where they were met by Fairfield county authorities. Pickaway countians have had some costly experiences with gypsies. A number of aged persons have been victims of robberies. County folk should notify the sheriff's department at once of any gypsies in their community. With proper cooperation from rural folk the department will see that the gypsies have the proper escorts out of this district.

CIRCUITEER.

TO BAND MEMBERS

YOUNGSTERS: School will be opening Sept. 11, the first football game will be played Sept. 15, and from that time on something will be doing during the remainder of the fall season. Why do you not get together and figure out some intricate drills that will help occupy the time between halves of the grid games? Circleville has joined an excellent athletic league and its schools will be sending outstanding bands to Circleville. I, for one, do not want to sit in the stands and watch a visiting organization outdo our own. Circleville has a fine musical organization. How about planning some drills that will add to this reputation?

CIRCUITEER.

TO DRIVERS

MOTORISTS: Since next Monday is a holiday many families will be planning trips during the week end. The highways will be crowded with traffic. Have you had your car checked recently to see if the brakes are in good condition, the lights working properly and the tires satisfactory. Last week end one person was killed and twelve injured in auto accidents in Pickaway County, the worst record of the summer. Drive carefully on your trip for the safety of your family and others on the highway. It's foolish to take chances. Remember the county schools open next week. Be on the lookout for school buses. Do not pass a stopped bus.

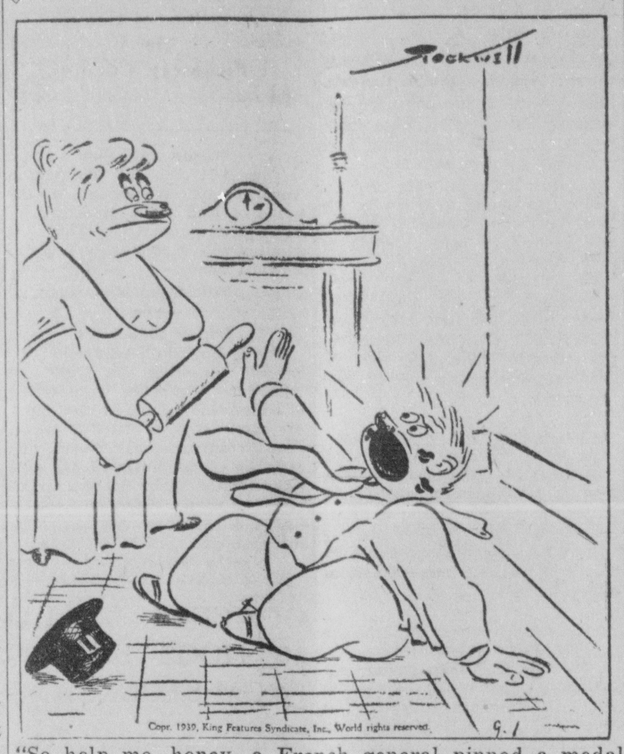

CIRCUITEER.

TO SCHOOL BOARDS

EDUCATORS: Controversies that surround the Muhlenberg and Scioto Township Boards of Education appear as though they may go on and on with solutions far in the future. Both sides in each dispute believe they are in the right, so, naturally, the argument continues. I am certainly not interested in who is right and who is wrong, but I do hope that something is done to provide pupils of the Muhlenberg district and of the Orient area a proper opportunity for education of the first class. Boards of education, whether local or county or state, should have the welfare of the children in mind at all times. The former argument, to determine whether Muhlenberg High School pupils should go to Monroe or Jackson Schools, has entered court. The other concerning operation of a one-room school in Orient may get to court since the Scioto Board has declared that it will open the Orient School despite a state ruling to the contrary.

DIET AND HEALTH

Tracing School Failures To Defective Eyesight

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

DESPITE the efforts made by public health agencies and other organizations, parents are not yet aware of the need of periodic examination of children's eyes.

Children of school age are constantly found to have visual defects, gross enough to render them incapable of succeeding in their courses. The children do not complain. When they enter school, they are for the first time made to do close visual work. In their innocence they assume that if the letters in the book are blurred, that is the way they should be and that every other pupil's book has blurred letters also.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

It is therefore not unnatural that the best meaning parents should be bewildered when their children are reported as failing in their studies and that they should resent the suggestion that the children are lacking in intelligence. They think, and properly, that the child at home is intelligent, and blame the school authorities for the failure of the child to advance.

Another Difficulty

Another difficulty familiar to school authorities is that when the suggestion is made that a child needs glasses, the parents say, "He got glasses a few years ago." As the child develops the eyes develop also, and the glasses that might have been proper "a few years ago" are not necessarily adequate now. Then it depends on who fitted the glasses "a few years ago." I feel that for a child's eyes the best oculist is none too good.

Oculists agree that the small errors are the most important to correct because a child's eyes are always attempting to over-correct these small errors. They succeed in doing so but only at the expense of strain, which means headache and general discomfort. Good vision is one thing, sustained good vision with comfort is quite another.

The two common abnormalities of the eyes in children are astigmatism and muscle imbalance. Both can be compensated, but at a cost of discomfort.

The short-sighted child presents no mystery. Anybody can be convinced that he needs glasses; so with the child with a plain squint. But the child with a small amount of astigmatism or slight muscle imbalance can correct, and does involuntarily correct these defects, and the condition passes unrecognized.

Astigmatism is a refractive error depending on the proper curve of the cornea. For perfect vision the cornea should be a perfect curve. Then all the rays of light would be refracted at the same focus. Such eyes are never found. We all have a certain amount of astigmatism. Just when it gets abnormal do we get symptoms. Whenever vision causes discomfort, it needs correction.

I think this point is not as trite as it sounds. Every astigmatism does not need correction. Our instruments for measuring visual defects are far more accurate than they need to be and many children are unnecessarily fitted with glasses.

J. F.: "(1) Is short-wave diathermy recommended for arthritis? (2) What causes lumps under the skin in arthritis? (3) Are these lumps ever pre-cancerous? (4) Does bursitis of the shoulder belong to either atrophic or hypertrophic arthritis group?"

Answer—(1) Yes. (2) Calcareous and inflammatory deposits. (3) No. (4) No.

J. L. D.: "Is there a cure for sugar diabetes? Please explain symptoms of the disease. What is the diet?"

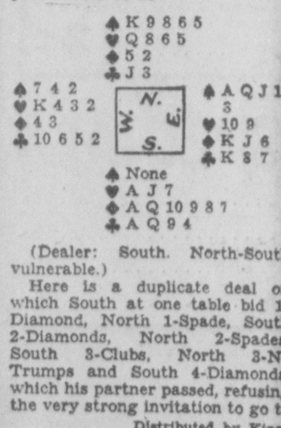

Answer—Diabetes can be controlled by diet and insulin. The symptoms are due to lack of utilization of sugar in the body. Treatment is to cut down the intake of sugar-producing foods—bread, sugar, fruits, desserts, milk.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

CONFLICTING FACTORS

ONE PRINCIPLE which is frequently of importance prescribes that, with a strong hand opposite a weak hand, the weaker one may be the better declarer, since the strong hand makes a good dummy for it, whereas the weaker hand would be a poor dummy for the strong hand. Another principle is that a hand containing a singleton, or more especially a blank suit, should seldom leave the contract in No Trump. When these principles conflict, what is the poor bidder to do?

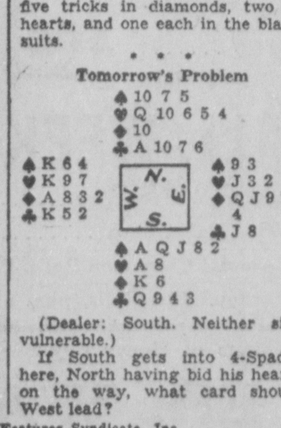

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

Here is a duplicate deal on which South at one table bid 1-Diamond, North 1-Spade, South 2-Diamonds, North 2-Spades, South 3-Clubs, North 3-No Trumps and South 4-Diamonds, which his partner passed, refusing the very strong invitation to go to 5-Clubs or diamonds. The contract was made right on the head.

At the other table the bidding was exactly the same up to the point of North's 3-No Trumps. South in this case decided to take a chance on his void suit and leave the contract at a No Trump game, which was made. East led the spade Q to the K. The diamond 10 was finessed, a heart led to the K and a spade returned for East to get three more tricks. When he then led his remaining heart, the Q won, then the diamond Q was finessed and the game made with five tricks in diamonds, two in hearts, and one each in the black suits.

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

If South gets into 4-Spades here, North having bid his hearts on the way, what card should West lead?

WASHINGTON, Sept. 1—That President Roosevelt ever will get the kind of neutrality legislation he wants is no foregone conclusion.

When congress adjourned, it appeared to be taken for granted by the administration that as soon as the lawmakers reconvened they'd vote the White House the discretion desired by its tenant. Especially was it predicted that Capitol Hill would recognize the desirability of complying with the presidential wish in the event that the European situation developed the tensity it did develop immediately following the conclusion of the Russo-German pact.

However, the senators and representatives who have been heard from thus far in Washington don't predominantly express themselves as having been converted. If anything, they seem more than even set upon a policy of unqualified American aloofness from overseas trouble.

Senator Gerald P. Nye, the author of the present neutrality rule which allows the White House no option whatever, was the first to authorize an interview, standing absolutely pat in favor of 100 percent isolation on Uncle Sam's part. In fact, he asserts that the recent trend of events across the ocean proves conclusively how imperatively the kind of law he fathered was needed.

Other isolationists apparently are in agreement with him, to judge from dispatches quoting them, in their various home towns throughout the country.

Dependable pro-administrationists, of course, will support the president, but the last session of congress revealed the unreliability of the majority party as backers of the executive mansion's recommendations.

It will be a tight squeak anyway.

WHAT ABOUT JAPAN?

While government spokesmen emphatically don't like the Hitler-Stalin dicker on general principles, a few of them very confidentially do voice a modicum of satisfaction at the fix it has left Japan in. There's been no doubt in Washington at any time that the Japs have intended to make China as disagreeable a place for Americans as for the English as soon as they considered the occasion ripe for it. Now, with Russia free to deal with them, it's foreseen that the islanders will be lucky to maintain any foothold at all in continental Asia.

That Stalin will lend all the aid possible to the Chinese is considered a certainty. In short, military men are mostly of the opinion that the Jap cause on the mainland is as good as lost already. If the Mikado couldn't lick Chiang Kai-Shek without the Soviets helping him, what chance will he have, critics ask skeptically, to handle a Russo-Chinese combination?

Indeed there are observers who suggest that the Tokio government may not last much longer.

That is to say if it becomes apparent to everybody in Japan that their mainland forces are definitely beaten, that all their fighting and sacrifices have gone for nothing, won't there be a terrific popular reaction? Inside informations is to the effect that there's considerable undercover dissatisfaction among the Japs now.

WHAT NEXT IN CHINA?

Some far-seeing commentators are a bit uneasy at the prospect of a formidable Russian intrenchment in China. Having disposed of Japan, if they succeed in doing it, the surmise is that the Soviets immediately will set about communizing all the Chinese. There's a good bit of Communistic sentiment among them already.

Pessismists venture the opinion that a Sovietized China might be as bad as having it run by the Japs.

It would be a matter of considerable concern to the United States, too. Most of Russia is rather remote from this country now. A Communistic nation right down to the edge of the Pacific, directly opposite our own west coast, would be different.

Perhaps the reason some of the statements being made by one or two of those European statesmen sound so incoherent is that they're being made from bomb-proof shelters.

Somebody ought to tell Hitler and those other chaps that the only man in the world to make real money out of fighting these last few years is a Detroit boy named Joe Louis.

CHAPTER THIRTY-ONE

"WELL, MEN, there's only one answer to that," George Brazee was saying. "I'm afraid you boys have been having your legs pulled by Mr. Escobar.

"How's that?" Shot Rogers demanded. He was a trifle belligerent.

"Well, Shot, what happened is plain. You boys all were so intent on following the cattle trail to the water and then going on upstream to see where they come out, that you overlooked the main detail. Why, son, of course them cows came out of the water right where they went in!"

"No, Mr. Brazee!"

"Why, shore they did. They'd have to. Escobar's gang just turned them around in mid-stream, and drove them out over their own tracks. Probably back trailed them a few hundred yards until they came to some rocky country, then cut suddenly off the trail you followed. You boys never noticed the back trailing. You just followed the steps to the river water because you saw them pointing that way clearly at first."

Shot held up a hand to halt him. "Mr. Brazee, sir, no! Now you are an older man than me—than I am. But some of the men you sent with me are older and more experienced than I am at trailing. And I am no fool myself. Why, what you say cain't be so! I'd stake my life on it. What about it, boys?"

The ten men who had accompanied Shot answered him almost as a chorus, backing him up. They carried enough weight, in reputation and in vehemence here, to convince George Brazee that perhaps he was wrong. But the matter was thereby left hanging again.

"Whyn't you ride over there yourself and see?" Shot challenged him. "I tell you, Mr. Brazee, it don't make sense. This is sure ghost country, and no foolin'! That's a ghost river if ever I saw one. And it's up to me to find the ghost somehow."

"I've got to go in to Blanco to meet some cattle buyers, or I'd ride over there," George Brazee said. "Maybe I can later. But no. No, you men are dependable. You work it out for me, gentlemen. I—well, I just don't know what to say. But it's midnight again, mighty near. Let's get to bed and sleep on it."

It was indeed late. Shot and his henchmen had circled about the river forks and argued for a long while, and finally come back home in sheer desperation. Some of them had become a bit ill tempered.

They had repeatedly sallied out with rifles and ammunition, expecting a show-down with Luis Escobar. And just as often had they been thwarted. Worst of all, they couldn't even understaand what had happened. Almost sullenly they trudged off to the bunk-house to go to bed.

Shot was last to leave the Brazee porch, and when he finally started, Lorena Hamilton called quietly to him.

"I didn't tag along after you this time, Shot," she said sweetly.

He stopped instantly, looking into the shadows beside the house. "I didn't see you out here," he said. "How're you doin'?"

"I'm just fine, thank you. How are you?"

"I'm—uh, I'm all right. You—you feel like maybe walking a little?"

"I thought you were angry with me."

"No'm. No, I been pretty cut up with myself. I couldn't ever be mad at you. Never!"

"Why Shot! That was a pretty speech."

"Well—"

"Well, what? Come on, we can walk over and sit on the windmill trough and play in the water."

"I been playing in water all day. I'm still soggy."

"Tell me about it. I just heard a part of what you told Uncle George."

She linked her hand in his elbow and they walked toward the windmill, his spurs clink-clinking, his hat scraping against the rough corduroy pants he wore as he swung it idly in his right hand. He gestured with his hat as he described the events of the day. He found he could talk freely with her. In fact, he discovered almost at once that Lorena's presence was immensely soothing and comforting to his soul, for he had been more upset inwardly than he was tired of muscle and bone.

By the time they sat on the rocks near the windmill tower they were talking intimately and in full trust again. Lorena felt her heart singing. The day had been a miserable one for her. She had been imagining all sorts of fantastic, sad and tragic things; hadn't even been hungry, which was her worst sign. Just sitting here with Shot, though, brought new life and interest into her being, and his own spirits responded in kind.

"The truth is, Lorena," he was soon admitting, "I'm not getting no—not getting anywhere a-tall. With a bunch of armed men, I mean. We're plumb up a tree. I got to stop depending on rifles and set down and do some plain and fancy thinking. That's the way I see it now."

"Oh, Shot, I wish I could help! Honestly I do. I want to. Look—you let me discuss it with you once before. Our detective plan, I mean. Don't you think—do you imagine maybe we could still—"

He reached to pat her hand affectionately, gratefully.

"Lorena, you are a swell somebody!" he spoke with conviction. "I'll sure listen to you."

"You—you won't think I'm a—an old setting hen, butting in on men's affairs?"

"Lo-re-na!"

"I think you have too many armed men, Shot. Escobar has secret spies here on the ranch; somehow they are telling Escobar everything you try to do. I can't name anybody for sure, but—"

"How'll we combat spies, then?"

"By counter-spying. Spying on Escobar."

"All right. I'll do any way you say, Lorena. I feel licked tonight."

"Anything? Anything I suggest? Promise?"

"Yes, I promise. All right."

"Then go quietly and get some dry clothes, Shot, and let's slip off to see what we can learn!"

"What? How's that?" He sat up straight to look intently at her.

"You heard me!" she was whispering excitedly. "You pretend to go to bed. So will I. Then meet me at one o'clock on top of the big cliff, back of the house. There's an easy trail up this side, even though it's steep. And a long sloping one down the back side which leads off to the southward. I went up today and looked all around."

"But listen, Lorena—"

"No, you listen! You leave a note saying you have gone in to Blanco to get two or three more men, and that your scouts are to ride around on the east range again trying to pick up any clews to Escobar. That will mislead any spies here, won't it? I'll say I went to Blanco with you, to do some shopping and see a dentist for a toothache. But actually, you and I'll go to the upper reaches of the Ghost river forks—and see what we can learn!"

"That's a long ride, Lorena! And dangerous. And—"

"We won't ride, we'll walk. Get shoulder packs. Food and canteens. You promised! There'll be far less danger than if we go on horses, Shot. Don't you see? I'm used to hiking. I have strong shoes. It's only eight or ten miles, isn't it? I can walk much farther than that!"

"My lordy!" breathed Shot Rogers, astounded, but tempted to try her daring plan even so.

A street length frock of wine chiffon velvet was chosen by the bride for her wedding, with which she wore accessories of Atlantic blue. Her only jewelry was a strand of pearls, a gift from the bridegroom.

Members of the immediate families and a few close friends were the only attendants at the wedding.

The Rev. Wenrich's charge includes the church of Tarlton and the one at Stoutsville.

The Rev. and Mrs. Wenrich left immediately after the wedding for Florida where they will be guests of his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Wilson of Daytona Beach.

GARDEN-GRAPH

Everlastings for winter bouquets

Flowers which retain their natural colors and form for a long time after being cut and dried are classified as Everlastings. They make ideal winter bouquets and are far more natural in appearance than painted or dyed weeds and flowers.

To prepare Everlastings, strip the leaves or foliage and hang them heads down in bunches in the attic or garage, as shown in today's Garden Graph. Let them dry out naturally, rather than try to hurry the process over a stove or radiator.

A large bag of wax tissue paper tied about the drying bunches of flowers will keep them from getting dusty. Do not attempt to arrange Everlastings in bouquets until all the moisture has dried in their stems or until the stems have become brittle.

Richard Clever, Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Clever and daughters, Helen and Dorothy of Lexington were entertained Sunday at the cabin of Mr .and Mrs. Ray Karshner near Logan.

Stoutsville Pastor And Bride Leave For Florida

At a quiet wedding solemnized Thursday at 10:30 A. M in St. John's Lutheran Church, West Broad Street, Columbus, Mrs. Cora Wolfe Morrison of Columbus, formerly of Circleville, was united in marriage with the Rev. S. M. Wenrich of Stoutsville.

The single ring ceremony was read by the Rev. L. L. Cooperrider.

Preceding the service, Miss Jeannette Wenrich, Stoutsville, a niece of the bridegroom, played a group of nuptial selections on the organ.

Members of the immediate families and a few close friends were the only attendants at the wedding.

The Rev. Wenrich's charge includes the church of Tarlton and the one at Stoutsville.

The Rev. and Mrs. Wenrich left immediately after the wedding for Florida where they will be guests of his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Wilson of Daytona Beach.

They will be at home to their friends after October 1 in Stoutsville.

Everlastings for winter bouquets

Flowers which retain their natural colors and form for a long time after being cut and dried are classified as Everlastings. They make ideal winter bouquets and are far more natural in appearance than painted or dyed weeds and flowers.

To prepare Everlastings, strip the leaves or foliage and hang them heads down in bunches in the attic or garage, as shown in today's Garden Graph. Let them dry out naturally, rather than try to hurry the process over a stove or radiator.

A large bag of wax tissue paper tied about the drying bunches of flowers will keep them from getting dusty. Do not attempt to arrange Everlastings in bouquets until all the moisture has dried in their stems or until the stems have become brittle.

Paris Reported Ready To Issue Ultimatum Hitting Nazi Attacks

cabinet assambled and Parliament was summoned to meet at noon (Circleville time).

An authoritative statement issued in London shortly before noon declared:

If the proclamation to the German people by Adolf Hitler should mean, as it would seem to mean, that Germany has declared war on Poland, it can be stated on highest authority that Great Britain and France are inflexibly determined to fulfil their obligation to the Polish government.

"The general attitude of the British government is that if the German government had been sincerely desirous of settling the dispute by negotiation, they would not have adopted this procedure, which has the character of an ultimatum.

"The Polish government, in the opinion of the British government, was fully justified in declining to submit to the treatment which the German government endeavored to impose on it.

Account Misleading

"The German account of the course of the negotiations is, of course, wholly misleading. On August 29, the German Chancellor informed the British ambassador that he expected a Polish plenipotentiary to appear in Berlin the following day with full powers to negotiate a settlement.

"He added that in the meantime he hoped to elaborate on the proposals. In other words, the Polish government was expected to submit to the procedure imposed on the president of Czechoslovakia and dispatch an emissary to Berlin who was to accept terms of a character which was wholly unknown to the Polish government.

"The Polish government has not unnaturally been unwilling to place itself in this humiliating position. It is not customary even in the case of terms being imposed on a defeated power to demand that negotiators should not be allowed to refer for instructions to their government.

"If the German government had been sincerely desirous of settling the dispute, negotiations would have begun with the Polish government in accordance with the normal procedure of civilized governments in order to fix a place and time for the opening of negotiations.

"As regards the terms now published, which have never been hitherto communicated to the Polish government, his majesty's gvernment can only say that the terms should of course have been submitted to the Polish government with time to consider whether or not they infringed on Poland's vital interests, which Germany in a written communication to the British government, has declared her intention of respecting."

Cabinet Meeting

As undeclared war raged on the Polish-German frontier, the cabinet of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain met in crucial session. A meeting of the privy council was postponed until the cabinet had finished.

All the defense ministers—for war, admiralty, air, coordination, and supply—assembled at the cabinet offices before the full meeting.

Polish Ambassador Count Edward Raczynski meanwhile called on Prime Minister Chamberlain—possibly to invoke the British Polish alliance.

Dispatches from Berlin virtually confirmed attacks on Poland, without revealing their nature.

Berlin military quarters said the air force was under strict orders to attack only military objectives "in retaliation for Polish attacks."

This "retaliation," it was reported, was taking place in Warsaw as in Cracow.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, and other major mmebers of the cabinet held urgent meetings today as violent events followed speedily on Poland's rejection of Germany's short-notice 16-point plan for a settlement.

Evacuation Begins

As reports of mass German land and air attacks on Poland electrified Europe, evacuation of some 3,000,000 children and invalids from London and other British cities started with calm precision today.

Parents wept, but there were few tears from the children, who looked on the adventure more as a holiday, when the first contingents began streaming out of town.

Under a clear blue sky and bright sun, the initial contingent gathered in the Stepney section of London, carrying their food rations, gas masks, and clothing, and trooped off to safety in the country.

Within a few days 400,000 children will have left London, and some 3,000,000 persons throughout the country will be in rural sanctuaries.

The mass movement of noncombatants coincided with a parallel movement of troops and naval ratings, called up by mobilization orders yesterday, to their camps and registration centers. The navy was fully mobilized, and army and air reserves were called to duty.

France Declares State Of Siege

PARIS, Sept. 1—In preparation for early armed aid of Poland, the French Council of Ministers today decreed general mobilization and proclaimed a state of siege throughout the nation.

Under the mobilization decree, all eligible troops must report for duty tomorrow. The state of siege declaration placed France under martial law.

The military is in full control throughout France.

As the ministerial council, under chairmanship of President Albert Lebrun, took this fateful step, a wisp of smoke was seen issuing from the roof of the German embassy. The staff apparently was burning confidential documents.

A communique after the council met with President Lebrun said:

"The ministerial Council unanimously approved a series of decrees presented by Premier Daladier.

"The first orders general mobilization of French fighting forces on land and sea and in the air, throughout the breadth of French territory, in Ageria, the Colonies, and all other areas under French sovereignty.

"The second establishes a state of siege in the 89 departments of France, and three departments in Algeria.

"The third convenes Parliament for tomorrow."

Soldiers Report At Once .. BF—

General mobilization places hundreds of thousands more men into uniforms. They will report to their units tomorrow.

Following the ministerial meeting, Foreign Minister Bonnet conferred with the Italian, Polish, British and United States ambassadors.

The ministry of France announced that so far there was no question of closing the bourse.

An absolute curfew for 8 P. M. was ordered for all cafes.

Polish quarters in Paris heard that bombing of major Polish cities by Germany is now general, while land attacks are under way on all fronts.

The Germans, according to the Poles, started their onslaught through Slovakia, bombing the towns of Westerplatte, Puch, Cracow and, so the Pales said, Warsaw.

The German attack was concentrated most heavily in the industrial regions of Silesia, the Polish account said, where the German objective is to break the backbone of Poland's resistance.

East Prussian forces attacked from the North, thus forming a vast pincers movement, the Polish embassy heard.

Shortly after the council meeting, Premier Daladier conferred with Gen. Marie-Gustave Gamelin, chief of all the French defense forces and the man who will head the combined Anglo-French forces if Britain and France join the war.

MUHLENBERG HIRES TWO NEW GRADE INSTRUCTORS

The grade school in Darbyville will open at 9 A. M. Monday for an organization session. High school pupils, under action of the township board, will be sent to Jackson Township School. They will be taken to Muhlenberg School on the regular school buses, than transported to Jackson School by bus.

"U. S. STAY OUT"

BOSTON, Sept. 1—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Massachusetts Republican, today declared: "I think America should stay out of war. "I said that yesterday. I say it today. I'll say it anytime."

The Constitution (Old Ironsides) took part in some 40 naval engagements and never suffered defeat.

necessary to remove danger and uncertainty from the German borders.

"We shall solve this problem ourselves and the neutral states have guaranteed their neutrality. If anyone should break this neutrality, we shall treat this accordingly, but we expect it to be observed.

"I shall not take off this army uniform until Germany is victorious.

"Unless I am victor, I shall not live to see the end.

"Should anything happen to me, then my successor shall be Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

Hess Next in Line

"Should anything happen to him, the next successor will be our party leader Rudolph Hess.

"I expect that each will be given the same confidence that you have given me.

"My only object is to fight for my people and the restoration of Germany. I have never learned the word capitulation. November 18, 1918, will never repeat itself in German history.

"I am ready to give my life for my country. I expect everyone to do the same."

Referring to the Russo-German pact, ratified yesterday in Berlin and Moscow, he said:

"I want to underline every word that has been said by Molotov (Premier V. M. Molotov of the U.S.S.R.)

"Germany and Russia fought against each other in the World War. Both suffered. That will not happen a second time.

"The Western frontier of Germany is its eternal border. I have offered England friendship repeatedly. But close cooperation demands that such proposals cannot be one-sided."

A brief telephonic message from Gleiwitz on the Silesian frontier said that German artillery had been "firing since dawn."

Details were not available.

It was believed that Josef Lipski, the Polish ambassador to Berlin who made a futile eleventh-hour attempt to find a basis for contact with Germany, would leave the German capital shortly aboard a special plane.

Authoritative quarters stated, however, that resumption of diplomatic activity was "still likely."

Soviet Mission Due

A special Soviet military mission is due in Berlin during the day.

It was generally believed here that arrival of the mission meant joint Russo-German military action in case of necessity.

Thousands of storm troopers lined the route always taken by Hitler from the chancellory to the Kroll opera house.

JENKINS DENIES HE WILL LEAVE LONDON PRISON

LONDON, Sept. 1—Rumors that he would resign the superintendency of the London Prison Farm were denied today by Thomas C. Jenkins, who has been under fire because of the escape of 14 inmates from the farm in the last 30 days.

"I have always said that I would not resign," Jenkins told International News Service.

"The Welfare Department has my request for a six months' leave of absence and I believe it will be given every consideration."

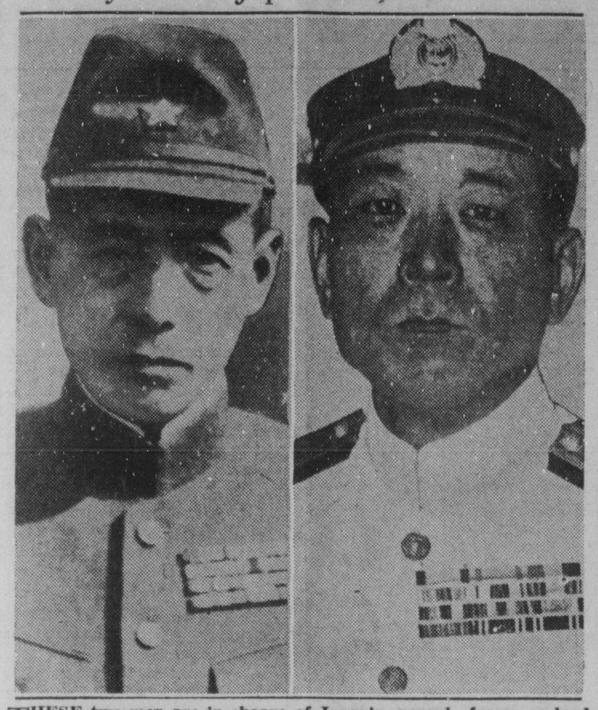

Jenkins has been in ill health for some time.

Meanwhile in Columbus, Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood said he would announce his decision on the prison farm situation next Tuesday. Jenkins confirmed "that it was possible something may come up in the next few days."

TWO HELD FOR JURY

THESE two men are in charge of Japan's armed forces on land and sea. At left, General Shunroka Hata, minister of war in the new cabinet of General Nobuyuki Abe. Third of German Jews Flee Rule of Fuehrer

LONDON, Sept. 1 — Since Reichsfuehrer Hitler began his merciless program, over one-third of Germany's Jews have fled from the hands of the British government showed today.

The number of persons still in greater Germany who must be regarded as "potential" refugees is stated to be 600,000—200,000 of whom are expected to remain owing to old age or infirmity.

According to the estimates, there are 150,000 German Jews in Europe today who have taken temporary refuge in various countries. Of this number, 60,000 are said to be supported by private organizations and charities.

During 1938 alone, 140,000 left Germany, and in the first three months of the current year, 29,000 have quit the country.

Refugees In England

The total of Austro-Germany-Czech refugees who have landed in England since 1933 is slightly above 30,000. Of this number, 3,873 have re-immigrated. Mass re-immigration is expected to begin as soon as resettlement areas are determined. Official Britain, straining every nerve to reduce unemployment, has claimed that her area is too small and too overpopulated to bear the brunt of the refugee influx.

In the past five years, it is estimated that over $125,000,000 has been obtained from private sources to aid those who have left the Reich. The largest proportion of the contribution has come from Jewsih communities in Europe and the United States.

A "Coordinating Foundation," designed to correlate the work of individual organizations and governments in aiding the Jews, is now in the process of being created in London. It is this group, working under the direction of the Inter - Governmental Conference, that will investigate the facilities of settlement in other countries and endeavor to secure the transfer of refugees property from Germany into other countries.

$1,000,000 Capital

A capital of $1,000,000 has been subscribed for the operation of the foundation.

Several commissions are now at work in different parts of the world attempting to find suitable areas for mass settlement. One of the latest reports to arrive in London is from the United States Commission investigating the possibilities in the Republic of San Domingo. It is stated that 29,000 families could be absorbed there provided that an agreement with the government could be made. A trial settlement of 250 persons is to begin shortly.

Another American commission in the Philippine Islands has concentrated on the island has concentrated on the island of Mindanao where it is thought at least 10,000 refugees can be settled in agriculture as well as industries.

Reports from Northern Rhodesia, Dutch Guiana, and New Caledonia are expected shortly.

Isaiah: A Life Dedicated to God

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Newman Campbell

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for September 3 is Isiah 6:2-13, the Golden Text being Isiah 6:8, "Here am I; send me.")

IF THE Children of Israel went astray during the reigns of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, it was most certainly not the fault of Isaiah the prophet, who seems to have spent his whole life in warning them of the woes in store for them. He was indeed a seer and a prophet, and his words have endured and are much quoted today. He prophesied the coming of the Prince of Peace.

"Ah sinful nation," he says in the beginning of the book bearing his name, "a people laden with iniquity, a seed of evildoers, children that are corrupters; they have forsaken the Lord, they have provoked the Holy one of Israel unto anger, they are gone away backward."

In the year King Uzziah died, Isaiah had a vision as he was worshiping in the temple. He saw the Lord sitting on a high throne, "and His train filled the temple." Above the throne stood seraphims, each having six wings; "with twain he covered his face, and with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did fly.

"And one cried unto another, and said 'Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of Hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.'"

Temple Fills With Smoke

Isaiah saw the posts of the door of the temple move and the whole house filled with smoke, and he was afraid and cried, "Woe is me! for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips; for mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of Hosts."

Then, he tells us, one of the seraphim flew to him with a live coal in his hand which he had taken with tongs from off the altar; and he touched Isaiah's mouth with the coal and said, "Lo, this hath touched thy lips; and thine iniquity is taken away, and thy sin purged."

Then Isaiah heard the voice of the Lord saying, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us"? And Isaiah answered gladly, "Here am I, send me," which is our Golden Text for today.

And the Lord said: "Go and tell this people, Hear ye indeed, but understand not; and see ye indeed, but perceive not.

"Make the heart of this people fat, and make their ears heavy, and shut their eyes; lest they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their hearts and convert and be healed."

Evidently the Lord was convinced that the people would not see or hear and try to do what was right, so to punish them He made them really unable to see and distinguish right from wrong.

"How Long?" asks Isaiah

Isaiah asked, "Lord, how long?" And the Lord answered, "Until the cities be wasted without inhabitants, and the houses without man, and the land be utterly desolate."

That was the end of Isaiah's vison, and he went from the temple and fulfilled the mission the Lord had given him, preaching everywhere of the destruction of the Children of Israel if they listened not to his voice. Too well he knew that few would listen to him, but God expected him to warn unceasingly as long as there was one left to hear his voice.

Regarding this vision of Isaiah's, it is explained that the symbolism of the seraphim with six wings meant that the two covering the feet and the two covering the face meant reverence, and the two outstretched for flight meant obedience.

For 40 years Isaiah worked and preached. He is called the greatest of the prophets, and he had two sons, whose names were Shear-jashub and Maher-shalal-hash-baz. He was an aristocrat and taught and lived in Jerusalem, and for many years had a great deal of influence, but at last, when a pagan group was in power, he is said to have suffered martyrdom.

GERMANY OWNS POWER IN AIR, EXPERT CLAIMS

Performance Records Held By Nazis Far Ahead Of Other Nations

CLEVELAND, Sept. 1—By the best barometer—airplane performance records — Germany still holds military aviation supremacy over the United States, despite the recent Army Air Corps record-smashing epidemic, it was learned exclusively today.

Disclosure of the continuing Nazi edge in fighting aircraft was made on the eve of the 12th National Air Races — during which new air records are expected—by a top-rank federal aviation expert, who has written an article on the subject which will appear in National Aeronautics Magazine next Tuesday.

To exhibit progress achieved during the half-year-old drive to regain from Germany the aviation crown the United States once held, the air corps, in the week preceding celebration of its 30th birthday, on August 2, smashed six international military aircraft performance records.

But, according to the International News service source, even if all six marks are certified by the federation aeronautique internationale—and one of the records reportedly has since been toppled by Nazi airmen—the standing would read:

Germany, 36; Italy, 34; France, 24; Russia, 23; United States, 23; Great Britain, 11.

The upward surge of Germany is revealed by an inspection of the standing in January, 1938 — twenty months ago—which read: Italy, 38; France, 36; Germany, 18; United States, 17; Russia, 17; Great Britain, 6.

However, the writer of the magazine article pointed out:

"Many of our late-type planes probably can better by comfortable margins many of the performances now officially recognized as the world's best."

CONNOLLY RESTING

Paris Reported Ready To Issue Ultimatum Hitting Nazi Attacks

cabinet assambled and Parliament was summoned to meet at noon (Circleville time).

An authoritative statement issued in London shortly before noon declared:

If the proclamation to the German people by Adolf Hitler should mean, as it would seem to mean, that Germany has declared war on Poland, it can be stated on highest authority that Great Britain and France are inflexibly determined to fulfil their obligation to the Polish government.

"The general attitude of the British government is that if the German government had been sincerely desirous of settling the dispute by negotiation, they would not have adopted this procedure, which has the character of an ultimatum.

"The Polish government, in the opinion of the British government, was fully justified in declining to submit to the treatment which the German government endeavored to impose on it.

Account Misleading

"The German account of the course of the negotiations is, of course, wholly misleading. On August 29, the German Chancellor informed the British ambassador that he expected a Polish plenipotentiary to appear in Berlin the following day with full powers to negotiate a settlement.

"He added that in the meantime he hoped to elaborate on the proposals. In other words, the Polish government was expected to submit to the procedure imposed on the president of Czechoslovakia and dispatch an emissary to Berlin who was to accept terms of a character which was wholly unknown to the Polish government.

"The Polish government has not unnaturally been unwilling to place itself in this humiliating position. It is not customary even in the case of terms being imposed on a defeated power to demand that negotiators should not be allowed to refer for instructions to their government.

"If the German government had been sincerely desirous of settling the dispute, negotiations would have begun with the Polish government in accordance with the normal procedure of civilized governments in order to fix a place and time for the opening of negotiations.

"As regards the terms now published, which have never been hitherto communicated to the Polish government, his majesty's gvernment can only say that the terms should of course have been submitted to the Polish government with time to consider whether or not they infringed on Poland's vital interests, which Germany in a written communication to the British government, has declared her intention of respecting."

Cabinet Meeting

As undeclared war raged on the Polish-German frontier, the cabinet of Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain met in crucial session. A meeting of the privy council was postponed until the cabinet had finished.

All the defense ministers—for war, admiralty, air, coordination, and supply—assembled at the cabinet offices before the full meeting.

Polish Ambassador Count Edward Raczynski meanwhile called on Prime Minister Chamberlain—possibly to invoke the British Polish alliance.

Dispatches from Berlin virtually confirmed attacks on Poland, without revealing their nature.

Berlin military quarters said the air force was under strict orders to attack only military objectives "in retaliation for Polish attacks."

This "retaliation," it was reported, was taking place in Warsaw as in Cracow.

Prime Minister Chamberlain, Foreign Secretary Lord Halifax, and other major mmebers of the cabinet held urgent meetings today as violent events followed speedily on Poland's rejection of Germany's short-notice 16-point plan for a settlement.

Evacuation Begins

As reports of mass German land and air attacks on Poland electrified Europe, evacuation of some 3,000,000 children and invalids from London and other British cities started with calm precision today.

Parents wept, but there were few tears from the children, who looked on the adventure more as a holiday, when the first contingents began streaming out of town.

Under a clear blue sky and bright sun, the initial contingent gathered in the Stepney section of London, carrying their food rations, gas masks, and clothing, and trooped off to safety in the country.

Within a few days 400,000 children will have left London, and some 3,000,000 persons throughout the country will be in rural sanctuaries.

The mass movement of noncombatants coincided with a parallel movement of troops and naval ratings, called up by mobilization orders yesterday, to their camps and registration centers. The navy was fully mobilized, and army and air reserves were called to duty.

France Declares State Of Siege

PARIS, Sept. 1—In preparation for early armed aid of Poland, the French Council of Ministers today decreed general mobilization and proclaimed a state of siege throughout the nation.

Under the mobilization decree, all eligible troops must report for duty tomorrow. The state of siege declaration placed France under martial law.

The military is in full control throughout France.

As the ministerial council, under chairmanship of President Albert Lebrun, took this fateful step, a wisp of smoke was seen issuing from the roof of the German embassy. The staff apparently was burning confidential documents.

A communique after the council met with President Lebrun said:

"The ministerial Council unanimously approved a series of decrees presented by Premier Daladier.

"The first orders general mobilization of French fighting forces on land and sea and in the air, throughout the breadth of French territory, in Ageria, the Colonies, and all other areas under French sovereignty.

"The second establishes a state of siege in the 89 departments of France, and three departments in Algeria.

"The third convenes Parliament for tomorrow."

Soldiers Report At Once .. BF—General mobilization places hundreds of thousands more men into uniforms. They will report to their units tomorrow.

Following the ministerial meeting, Foreign Minister Bonnet conferred with the Italian, Polish, British and United States ambassadors.

The ministry of France announced that so far there was no question of closing the bourse.

An absolute curfew for 8 P. M. was ordered for all cafes.

Polish quarters in Paris heard that bombing of major Polish cities by Germany is now general, while land attacks are under way on all fronts.

The Germans, according to the Poles, started their onslaught through Slovakia, bombing the towns of Westerplatte, Puch, Cracow and, so the Pales said, Warsaw.

The German attack was concentrated most heavily in the industrial regions of Silesia, the Polish account said, where the German objective is to break the backbone of Poland's resistance.

East Prussian forces attacked from the North, thus forming a vast pincers movement, the Polish embassy heard.

Shortly after the council meeting, Premier Daladier conferred with Gen. Marie-Gustave Gamelin, chief of all the French defense forces and the man who will head the combined Anglo-French forces if Britain and France join the war.

MUHLENBERG HIRES TWO NEW GRADE INSTRUCTORS

The grade school in Darbyville will open at 9 A. M. Monday for an organization session. High school pupils, under action of the township board, will be sent to Jackson Township School. They will be taken to Muhlenberg School on the regular school buses, than transported to Jackson School by bus.

"U. S. STAY OUT"

BOSTON, Sept. 1—Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, Jr., Massachusetts Republican, today declared: "I think America should stay out of war. "I said that yesterday, I say it today. I'll say it anytime."

The Constitution (Old Ironsides) took part in some 40 naval engagements and never suffered defeat.

"We shall solve this problem ourselves and the neutral states have guaranteed their neutrality. If anyone should break this neutrality, we shall treat this accordingly, but we expect it to be observed.

"I shall not take off this army uniform until Germany is victorious.

"Unless I am victor, I shall not live to see the end.

"Should anything happen to me, then my successor shall be Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering.

"Should anything happen to him, the next successor will be our party leader Rudolph Hess.

"I expect that each will be given the same confidence that you have given me.

"My only object is to fight for my people and the restoration of Germany. I have never learned the word capitulation. November 18, 1918, will never repeat itself in German history.

"I am ready to give my life for my country. I expect everyone to do the same."

Referring to the Russo-German pact, ratified yesterday in Berlin and Moscow, he said:

"I want to underline every word that has been said by Molotov (Premier V. M. Molotov of the U.S.S.R.)

"Germany and Russia fought against each other in the World War. Both suffered. That will not happen a second time.

"The Western frontier of Germany is its eternal border. I have offered England friendship repeatedly. But close cooperation demands that such proposals cannot be one-sided."

A brief telephonic message from Gleiwitz on the Silesian frontier said that German artillery had been "firing since dawn."

Details were not available.

It was believed that Josef Lipski, the Polish ambassador to Berlin who made a futile eleventh-hour attempt to find a basis for contact with Germany, would leave the German capital shortly aboard a special plane.

Authoritative quarters stated, however, that resumption of diplomatic activity was "still likely."

JENKINS DENIES HE WILL LEAVE LONDON PRISON

LONDON, Sept. 1—Rumors that he would resign the superintendency of the London Prison Farm were denied today by Thomas C. Jenkins, who has been under fire because of the escape of 14 inmates from the farm in the last 30 days.

"I have always said that I would not resign," Jenkins told International News Service.

"The Welfare Department has my request for a six months' leave of absence and I believe it will be given every consideration."

Jenkins has been in ill health for some time.

Meanwhile in Columbus, Welfare Director Charles L. Sherwood said he would announce his decision on the prison farm situation next Tuesday. Jenkins confirmed "that it was possible something may come up in the next few days."

Third of German Jews Flee Rule of Fuehrer

LONDON, Sept. 1 — Since Reichsfuehrer Hitler began his merciless program, over one-third of Germany's Jews have fled from the hands of the British government showed today.

The number of persons still in greater Germany who must be regarded as "potential" refugees is stated to be 600,000—200,000 of whom are expected to remain owing to old age or infirmity.

According to the estimates, there are 150,000 German Jews in Europe today who have taken temporary refuge in various countries. Of this number, 60,000 are said to be supported by private organizations and charities.

During 1938 alone, 140,000 left Germany, and in the first three months of the current year, 29,000 have quit the country.

Refugees In England

The total of Austro-Germany-Czech refugees who have landed in England since 1933 is slightly above 30,000. Of this number, 3,873 have re-immigrated. Mass re-immigration is expected to begin as soon as resettlement areas are determined. Official Britain, straining every nerve to reduce unemployment, has claimed that her area is too small and too overpopulated to bear the brunt of the refugee influx.

In the past five years, it is estimated that over $125,000,000 has been obtained from private sources to aid those who have left the Reich. The largest proportion of the contribution has come from Jewsih communities in Europe and the United States.

A "Coordinating Foundation," designed to correlate the work of individual organizations and governments in aiding the Jews, is now in the process of being created in London. It is this group, working under the direction of the Inter - Governmental Conference, that will investigate the facilities of settlement in other countries and endeavor to secure the transfer of refugees property from Germany into other countries.

$1,000,000 Capital

A capital of $1,000,000 has been subscribed for the operation of the foundation.

Several commissions are now at work in different parts of the world attempting to find suitable areas for mass settlement. One of the latest reports to arrive in London is from the United States Commission investigating the possibilities in the Republic of San Domingo. It is stated that 29,000 families could be absorbed there provided that an agreement with the government could be made. A trial settlement of 250 persons is to begin shortly.

Another American commission in the Philippine Islands has concentrated on the island has concentrated on the island of Mindanao where it is thought at least 10,000 refugees can be settled in agriculture as well as industries.

Reports from Northern Rhodesia, Dutch Guiana, and New Caledonia are expected shortly.

Isaiah: A Life Dedicated to God

HIGHLIGHTS ON THE SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By Newman Campbell

(The International Uniform Lesson on the above topic for September 3 is Isiah 6:2-13, the Golden Text being Isiah 6:8, "Here am I; send me.")

IF THE Children of Israel went astray during the reigns of Uzziah, Jotham, Ahaz and Hezekiah, it was most certainly not the fault of Isaiah the prophet, who seems to have spent his whole life in warning them of the woes in store for them. He was indeed a seer and a prophet, and his words have endured and are much quoted today. He prophesied the coming of the Prince of Peace.

"Ah sinful nation," he says in the beginning of the book bearing his name, "a people laden with iniquity, a seed of evildoers, children that are corrupters; they have forsaken the Lord, they have provoked the Holy one of Israel unto anger, they are gone away backward."

In the year King Uzziah died, Isaiah had a vision as he was worshiping in the temple. He saw the Lord sitting on a high throne, "and His train filled the temple." Above the throne stood seraphims, each having six wings; "with twain he covered his face, and with twain he covered his feet, and with twain he did fly.

"And one cried unto another, and said 'Holy, holy, holy, is the Lord of Hosts; the whole earth is full of His glory.'"

Temple Fills With Smoke

Isaiah saw the posts of the door of the temple move and the whole house filled with smoke, and he was afraid and cried, "Woe is me! for I am undone; because I am a man of unclean lips, and I dwell in the midst of a people of unclean lips; for mine eyes have seen the King, the Lord of Hosts."

Then, he tells us, one of the seraphim flew to him with a live coal in his hand which he had taken with tongs from off the altar; and he touched Isaiah's mouth with the coal and said, "Lo, this hath touched thy lips; and thine iniquity is taken away, and thy sin purged."

Then Isaiah heard the voice of the Lord saying, "Whom shall I send, and who will go for us"? And Isaiah answered gladly, "Here am I, send me," which is our Golden Text for today.

And the Lord said: "Go and tell this people, Hear ye indeed, but understand not; and see ye indeed, but perceive not.

"Make the heart of this people fat, and make their ears heavy, and shut their eyes; lest they see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their hearts and convert and be healed."

Evidently the Lord was convinced that the people would not see or hear and try to do what was right, so to punish them He made them really unable to see and distinguish right from wrong.

"How Long?" asks Isaiah

Isaiah asked, "Lord, how long?" And the Lord answered, "Until the cities be wasted without inhabitants, and the houses without man, and the land be utterly desolate."

That was the end of Isaiah's vison, and he went from the temple and fulfilled the mission the Lord had given him, preaching everywhere of the destruction of the Children of Israel if they listened not to his voice. Too well he knew that few would listen to him, but God expected him to warn unceasingly as long as there was one left to hear his voice.

Regarding this vision of Isaiah's, it is explained that the symbolism of the seraphim with six wings meant that the two covering the feet and the two covering the face meant reverence, and the two outstretched for flight meant obedience.

For 40 years Isaiah worked and preached. He is called the greatest of the prophets, and he had two sons, whose names were Shear-jashub and Maher-shalal-hash-baz. He was an aristocrat and taught and lived in Jerusalem, and for many years had a great deal of influence, but at last, when a pagan group was in power, he is said to have suffered martyrdom.

GERMANY OWNS POWER IN AIR, EXPERT CLAIMS

Performance Records Held By Nazis Far Ahead Of Other Nations

CLEVELAND, Sept. 1—By the best barometer—airplane performance records — Germany still holds military aviation supremacy over the United States, despite the recent Army Air Corps record-smashing epidemic, it was learned exclusively today.

Disclosure of the continuing Nazi edge in fighting aircraft was made on the eve of the 12th National Air Races — during which new air records are expected—by a top-rank federal aviation expert, who has written an article on the subject which will appear in National Aeronautics Magazine next Tuesday.

To exhibit progress achieved during the half-year-old drive to regain from Germany the aviation crown the United States once held, the air corps, in the week preceding celebration of its 30th birthday, on August 2, smashed six international military aircraft performance records.

But, according to the International News service source, even if all six marks are certified by the federation aeronautique internationale—and one of the records reportedly has since been toppled by Nazi airmen—the standing would read:

Germany, 36; Italy, 34; France, 24; Russia, 23; United States, 23; Great Britain, 11.

The upward surge of Germany is revealed by an inspection of the standing in January, 1938 — twenty months ago—which read: Italy, 38; France, 36; Germany, 18; United States, 17; Russia, 17; Great Britain, 6.

However, the writer of the magazine article pointed out:

"Many of our late-type planes probably can better by comfortable margins many of the performances now officially recognized as the world's best."

Bob Riggs U. S. Tennis Hope

By Lawton Carver

HAVERFORD, Pa., Sept. 1—Airily unconcerned about it all, Bobby Riggs of Chicago today was the main hope of the United States as final preparations were completed for defense of the Davis Cup against Australia's crack duo of Jack Bromwich and Adrian Quist in the series beginning at hallowed Merion Cricket Club tomorrow. By this time everybody admits that as Riggs goes, so go we — these United States. The outlook is a little discouraging according to most observers, and even worse than that if you pay any heed to reports that the challengers have been set up as 3 to 1 favorites.

Despite all that, they say Riggs may get hot, or lucky, or both and for the time being discontinue his exasperating dilly-dallying, in which case we've got a chance—a very slim one, but a chance nevertheless. But our No. 1 man with the splay-footed Charlie Chaplin toddle is going to have to open up at the start and keep blazing to the finish.

On the other hand, being less hopeful and more realistic about the thing, it is doubtful that he can win more than one singles match and Frankie Parker, our No. 2 man, may not even do that well, while our dobules tandem of Joe Hunt and Jack Kramer is freshly-plucked, inexperienced and generally presumed to be doomed to failure.

Two singles matches will be played tomorrow; the doubles Sunday and the remaining two singles matches Monday, when Saturday's players will switch opponents. Australia is expected to go through fro mstart to finish with just two men in singles and doubles—Bromwich and Quist.

Air Races Will Unveil Mystery

WASHINGTON, D. C., Sept. 1—For the first time in the brief but engrossing history of airplane racing, the mystery of the "mystery ship" will be solved at the 12th National Air Races at Cleveland on Sept. 2-3-4.

Every air race meet, since two now-forgotten, entirely reckless and uncaring gentlemen went aloft not too many years ago in a couple of bailing wire and bedsheet contraptions they called racing planes to see which, if either, could cover a given distance faster, has had either a "mystery ship" or a "mystery pilot," or both.

But something always happened to preclude actual participation by either, and so the mystery has never been solved. Of course, the "mystery ship," with its revolutionary design and blinding speed, has been a source of never-ending solace and comfort to the press agent, but naturally, that has had nothing to do with its never-failing appearance in the racing entry lists.

Ship Actually Existed

There has never been any suspicion that these interest-tickling enigmas of the racing airplane world have been mere figments of the press agent's mind. When word of a "mystery ship" has been bruited about, there has actually always been such an airplane, and if the darn thing blew up or caught on fire in the hangar the night before the race, it was fortunate, but certainly nobody's fault.

The management has always been sorry, but unforeseen events have forced the withdrawal of entry No. X, the blue and green racer owned by, etc. This announcement has come to be known as No. 71-A.

Well, there will be none of that at this year's National Air Races, and just to guarantee it, the management herewith strips the cloak of secrecy from both "mystery ship" and "mystery pilot" for the benefit of all prospective air race customers.

That leaves nothing up either sleeve; most of the mystery is solved, and "you pays your money and takes your choice." In other words, you can come to the races, or stay home and listen over the radio (the management recommends the former) to see how the rest of the mystery comes out—viz., what happens to the "mystery ship" and the mystery pilot" when the actual racing begins.

The 1939 National Air Race "mystery pilot" is none other than Wilbur Shaw, the noted racing automobile driver and current Indianapolis Speedway champion. The ground racing department now that he has copped the Indianapolis classic, has little left to attract Mr. Shaw, so he will attempt to win the Los Angeles-Cleveland Bendix Trophy Cross-Country Airplane Race on September 2.

Already In Training

In fact, this inexplicable gentleman is already in training for the gruelling transcontinental grind, in which he will stack up against such veteran air racing pilots as Frank Fuller and Jacqueline Cochran, 1937 and 1938 Bendix champions, respectively.

And the 1939 National Air Race "mystery ship" is the racer in which Howard Hughes, the youthful movie magnate and oil baron, established the present transcontinental record of 7 hours and 26 minutes.

This aerial thunder canoe—and the only mystery about it is how fast it really will go—has been locked away in a New Jersey hangar for two years, but recently it was purchased by a syndicate for entrance in the Nationals. This is distinctly bad news for the other racing pilots, who have put in the usual year's hard work trying to get a ship in shape to bite off a hunk of that $85,000 National Air Race prize money.

THE GARDEN CLINIC
By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: I planted several new shade trees in my lawn this spring and find that now the bark on one side is dead. What can I do about it?

ANSWER: The only thing you can do about the dead bark on your trees now is to cut off any that is dead, paint the exposed wood with a good asphalt tree paint, and hope that new bark will grow out over the wound. If you had properly wrapped the trunks with burlap or heavy tree wrapping paper from the branches to the ground as soon as you had planted them, this would not have happened. Between borers and sunscald, all newly-planted trees require this protection for two years.

QUESTION: A drunken driver hit the large maple tree in front of our house and besides ripping off some of the bark, gouged out some of the wood. A local tree expert advised me to have this hole filled immediately to save the tree. The hole is about one-half to three-quarters of an inch deep.

ANSWER: I am afraid the so-called tree expert was merely a quack since no filling could possibly hold in a caviety as shallow as this. If the torn wood is cut away, and the wound painted as recommended above with a good asphalt tree paint, the tree will in time grow over the wound.

QUESTION: I have quite a number of hardy phlox in my yard, now that they are through blooming they are ready to set seed. Should I let them set seed or remove them immediately?

ANSWER: Although it will do no great harm to the phlox to set seed, you will find that the seedlings, when they come up, are very often so vigorous that they crowd out your good varieties and give you a crop of poorly colored flowers.

QUESTION: My mother has a bed of violets and lily-of-the-valley. We noticed last Spring that some of the lily-of-the-valley has some streaks on the flowers. Is it possible that the lily-of-the-valley and violets are mixing?

ANSWER: There is no possible chance of the lily-of-the-valley and violets mixing.

QUESTION: I have a number of tulips that I dug up in my beds last Spring and, now that I am preparing a new bed where I am going to plant them, I would like to know how early they should be planted.

ANSWER: You can plant your tulips any time. In fact, it would have done no harm to have left them in the ground all Summer.

QUESTION: Just received a very interesting bulb catalog but there are so many bulbs in it that I hardly know which tulip to buy. What would you recommend?

ANSWER: Although most people buy tulips because of their showiness, I personally feel that a lot of the smaller and earlier blooming bulbs give just as much if not more enjoyment. May I suggest, among others, that you try grape hyacinths, Siberian squills, English squills, Kaufmann tulips, Tritellia, Winter aconite and some of the Dutch and English iris. Be sure to get some of the daffodils or narcissus. If you do not care to buy individual varieties, why not buy the best mixture that they offer?

QUESTION: It is true that plants should be watered only at night?

ANSWER: It is not. In fact, in the commercial truck gardens and nurseries they do practically all their watering during the day. With plants susceptible to diseases, such as roses, it is safer to water during the day so that the leaves do not go into the night with their foliage wet since this tends to give more favorable conditions for the spread of disease.

QUESTION: We have just moved into a home of our own and would like to plant cedars in front of the house. Can you tell me what kind I should use?

ANSWER: By cedars, I take it that you mean evergreens. Incidentally, the needled evergreens are not all cedars but include pines, spruce, firs, yews, hemlocks, arborvitaes, and retinosporas. Since many evergreens are forest trees and will soon become too large, may I especially suggest that you use junipers—the Pfitzer, the Andora, or the Chinese. The Mugho pine is aboutthe only dwarf you will likely be able to buy. The Japanese yew is especially desirable. In addition to these, I would recommend the use of some broad leafed evergreens such as firethorn, mahonia, evergreen bittersweet, and inkberry. It is also possible to use the American holly which is evergreen.

QUESTION: I have been saving seeds from the flowers in my garden this year. It is true that these seeds will not grow if planted in the same garden; i. e., same soil next year?

ANSWER: The seeds will grow in the soil the following year.

QUESTION: I have had a lily for the past 10 years and this is the first time it has bloomed. Can you tell me why it has not bloomed before? It came from California.

ANSWER: I cannot be sure just what is the matter with your lily but I would suggest that you plant it in a well-drained soil and mulch the soil with some material such as grass clippings in order to keep it cool. This greatly increases the chances of annual blooming.

Bob Riggs U. S. Tennis Hope

By Lawton Carver

HAVERFORD, Pa., Sept. 1—Airily unconcerned about it all, Bobby Riggs of Chicago today was the main hope of the United States as final preparations were completed for defense of the Davis Cup against Australia's crack duo of Jack Bromwich and Adrian Quist in the series beginning at hallowed Merion Cricket Club tomorrow. By this time everybody admits that as Riggs goes, so go we — these United States. The outlook is a little discouraging according to most observers, and even worse than that if you pay any heed to reports that the challengers have been set up as 3 to 1 favorites.

Despite all that, they say Riggs may get hot, or lucky, or both and for the time being discontinue his exasperating dilly-dallying, in which case we've got a chance—a very slim one, but a chance nevertheless. But our No. 1 man with the splay-footed Charlie Chaplin toddle is going to have to open up at the start and keep blazing to the finish.

On the other hand, being less hopeful and more realistic about the thing, it is doubtful that he can win more than one singles match and Frankie Parker, our No. 2 man, may not even do that well, while our dobules tandem of Joe Hunt and Jack Kramer is freshly-plucked, inexperienced and generally presumed to be doomed to failure.

Two singles matches will be played tomorrow; the doubles Sunday and the remaining two singles matches Monday, when Saturday's players will switch opponents. Australia is expected to go through fro mstart to finish with just two men in singles and doubles—Bromwich and Quist.

NEW YORK, Sept. 1—Rain washed out three doubleheaders in the National League yesterday, but permitted the Phils and Pirates to see action, The Pirates took the first, 1-0, in a pitching duel between Butcher and Higbe but dropped the second, a slugfest, 11-6.

In the other circuit, the Red Sox dropped another half game behind the idle Yanks when the Tigers trounced them 11-4; the A's beat the Browns, 4-2, and in a night game the Senators defeated the White Sox 4 to 3.

THE GARDEN CLINIC

By VICTOR H. RIES,
O. S. U. floriculturist

QUESTION: I planted several new shade trees in my lawn this spring and find that now the bark on one side is dead. What can I do about it?

ANSWER: The only thing you can do about the dead bark on your trees now is to cut off any that is dead, paint the exposed wood with a good asphalt tree paint, and hope that new bark will grow out over the wound. If you had properly wrapped the trunks with burlap or heavy tree wrapping paper from the branches to the ground as soon as you had planted them, this would not have happened. Between borers and sunscald, all newly-planted trees require this protection for two years.

QUESTION: A drunken driver hit the large maple tree in front of our house and besides ripping off some of the bark, gouged out some of the wood. A local tree expert advised me to have this hole filled immediately to save the tree. The hole is about one-half to three-quarters of an inch deep.

ANSWER: I am afraid the so-called tree expert was merely a quack since no filling could possibly hold in a caviety as shallow as this. If the torn wood is cut away, and the wound painted as recommended above with a good asphalt tree paint, the tree will in time grow over the wound.

QUESTION: I have quite a number of hardy phlox in my yard, now that they are through blooming they are ready to set seed. Should I let them set seed or remove them immediately?

ANSWER: Although it will do no great harm to the phlox to set seed, you will find that the seedlings, when they come up, are very often so vigorous that they crowd out your good varieties and give you a crop of poorly colored flowers.

QUESTION: My mother has a bed of violets and lily-of-the-valley. We noticed last Spring that some of the lily-of-the-valley has some streaks on the flowers. Is it possible that the lily-of-the-valley and violets are mixing?

ANSWER: There is no possible chance of the lily-of-the-valley and violets mixing.

QUESTION: I have a number of tulips that I dug up in my beds last Spring and, now that I am preparing a new bed where I am going to plant them. I would like to know how early they should be planted.

ANSWER: You can plant your tulips any time. In fact, it would have done no harm to have left them in the ground all Summer.

QUESTION: Just received a very interesting bulb catalog but there are so many bulbs in it that I hardly know which tulip to buy. What would you recommend?

ANSWER: Although most people buy tulips because of their showiness, I personally feel that a lot of the smaller and earlier blooming bulbs give just as much if not more enjoyment. May I suggest, among others, that you try grape hyacinths, Siberian squills, English squills, Kaufmann tulips, Tritellia, Winter aconite and some of the Dutch and English iris. Be sure to get some of the daffodils or narcissus. If you do not care to buy individual varieties, why not buy the best mixture that they offer?

QUESTION: It is true that plants should be watered only at night?

ANSWER: It is not. In fact, in the commercial truck gardens and nurseries they do practically all their watering during the day. With plants susceptible to diseases, such as roses, it is safer to water during the day so that the leaves do not go into the night with their foliage wet since this tends to give more favorable conditions for the spread of disease.

QUESTION: We have just moved into a home of our own and would like to plant cedars in front of the house. Can you tell me what kind I should use?

ANSWER: By cedars, I take it that you mean evergreens. Incidentally, the needled evergreens are not all cedars but include pines, spruce, firs, yews, hemlocks, arborvitaes, and retinosporas. Since many evergreens are forest trees and will soon become too large, may I especially suggest that you use junipers—the Pfitzer, the Andora, or the Chinese. The Mugho pine is aboutthe only dwarf you will likely be able to buy. The Japanese yew is especially desirable. In addition to these, I would recommend the use of some broad leafed evergreens such as firethorn, mahonia, evergreen bittersweet, and inkberry. It is also possible to use the American holly which is evergreen.

QUESTION: I have been saying seeds from the flowers in my garden this year. It is true that these seeds will not grow if planted in the same garden; i. e., same soil next year?

ANSWER: The seeds will grow in the soil the following year.

QUESTION: I have had a lily for the past 10 years and this is the first time it has bloomed. Can you tell me why it has not bloomed before? It came from California.

ANSWER: I cannot be sure just what is the matter with your lily but I would suggest that you plant it in a well-drained soil and mulch the soil with some material such as grass clippings in order to keep it cool. This greatly increases the chances of annual blooming.

CAN'T KISS AT WHEEL

BOSTON — Kissing is a pleasant experience in which any young lady may indulge. In fact Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin hopes a Springfield young lady will do a lot of it for seven days. He suspended her driving license for that period. An inspector reported the young lady was driving across a bridge at night without lights, at a speed of 45 miles an hour, while her boy friend was planting a kiss on her ruby lips.

NEW GOLD RUSH

GRAND COULEE, Wash. — The man-made lake slowly forming behind huge Grand Coulee dam is precipitating a minor gold rush along the banks of the Columbia River. Private mining parties with a wide variety of equipment, much of it primitive, are "making wages" by extracting flake gold from top soil as WPA workers clear the area where the lake is to be. The region will be under water next summer.

Boy! did I get a TRADE?
on a new Ford V-8

Took my old car to the Ford dealer. Ever since we first saw it my wife and I have been crazy for a new Ford V-8. So I took the old bus around to the Ford dealer to see what kind of a trade I could make.

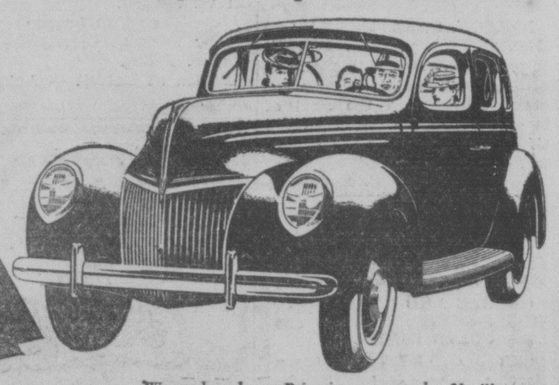

Was I surprised when the Ford dealer offered me $25.00 more. The figure I set on my old car gave me all the best of it. Imagine my surprise when the Ford dealer gave me $25.00 more.

Did I get a trade. You bet I jumped at the deal. Drove home in a brand new Ford V-8. Has it got style! Is my wife crazy about its luxurious comfort! Are those big hydraulic brakes sm-o-o-th!

AND YOU GET MORE when you buy a FORD V-8

The new Ford V-8 leads the parade in streamlined beauty, in comfort, in performance, in economy. It's the car that gives you extra value instead of extra cost. The high quality features in the Ford V-8 are found only in cars costing hundreds of dollars more. At nowhere near the price can you match its brilliant V-8 performance.

See Ford first!

We need used cars. Bring in your car today. You'll be surprised at the liberal allowance we'll make.

SOCIETY OF OLD AGE PENSIONERS OPPOSE BIGELOW

COLUMBUS, Sept. 1 — Delegates to the fourth annual convention of the Ohio Society of Old Age Pensioners were on record today as opposing the Bigelow amendment proposing a $50 monthly payment by the state to all persons over 60.

Four hundred delegates from all parts of the state attended the session in Columbus, at which T. J. Johnson was reelected president and Rev. W. F. Kraft was re-named secretary and treasurer. Both men are from Columbus.

Rev. Kraft said the organization was opposed to the Bigelow plan because of its proposed transactions tax. He added that the proposals were "beyond all reason."

COLUMBUS, Sept. 1 — A total of $6,015 was spent in the drive to bring the proposed Bigelow pension amendment to a vote in November, according to a report on file today with Secretary of State Earl Griffith.

Herbert S. Bigelow, of Cincinnati, sponsor of the plan, said a total of $6,350 had been received by his organization's Cincinnati and Cleveland offices for the campaign.

Meanwhile, state officials awaited reports from election boards in five counties before tabulating signatures on petitions to determine whether there were enough to call for a popular vote on the question.

PENNY IS WELL-GUARDED

COLUMBUS, O. — Betty Ann O'Donnell is only six years old, but at that tender age she already has learned that money must be guarded. Given a bright new penny, she was at loss for a safe hiding place so she put it in her mouth before going to sleep. In her slumber she swallowed the penny. Betty Ann was taken to a hospital where a physician removed it.

SOCIETY OF OLD AGE PENSIONERS OPPOSE BIGELOW

COLUMBUS, Sept. 1 — Delegates to the fourth annual convention of the Ohio Society of Old Age Pensioners were on record today as opposing the Bigelow amendment proposing a $50 monthly payment by the state to all persons over 60.

Four hundred delegates from all parts of the state attended the session in Columbus, at which T. J. Johnson was reelected president and Rev. W. F. Kraft was re-named secretary and treasurer. Both men are from Columbus.

Rev. Kraft said the organization was opposed to the Bigelow plan because of its proposed transactions tax. He added that the proposals were "beyond all reason."

COLUMBUS, Sept. 1 — A total of $6,015 was spent in the drive to bring the proposed Bigelow pension amendment to a vote in November, according to a report on file today with Secretary of State Earl Griffith.

Herbert S. Bigelow, of Cincinnati, sponsor of the plan, said a total of $6,350 had been received by his organization's Cincinnati and Cleveland offices for the campaign.

Meanwhile, state officials awaited reports from election boards in five counties before tabulating signatures on petitions to determine whether there were enough to call for a popular vote on the question.

PENNY IS WELL-GUARDED

Given a bright new penny, she was at loss for a safe hiding place so she put it in her mouth before going to sleep. In her slumber she swallowed the penny. Betty Ann was taken to a hospital where a physician removed it.
